Snow pagues efforts to dig out

Predict more snow Friday and Monday

Weather-weary Quad-Cityans found little relief this week from Sunday's record 17-inch snow as additional snow fell yesterday and the U.S. Weather Bureau warned of more snow tonight, tomorrow and Monday.

Officially, there is a 60 percent chance of snow tonight and an 80 percent likelihood of snow tomorrow, according to the Weather Bureau, which also predicts a chance of snow on Monday.

The additional snow forced the early closing of Quad-City area public schools yesterday and, school officials have announced, there will be no school until Monday. The danger of children walking in the streets beside cars sliding on the ice and snow was cited as the primary reason for the closings.

Few local residents were able to shovel the deep snow from their front sidewalks, finding the task of keeping driveways clear an almost overwhelming job. Subsequently, walking has been difficult, hampering mail delivery and hampering efforts by those without operating cars to get to local stores and stock up on necessities, in case they become snowbound. Slippery streets interrupted the delivery network to stores and items which must be delivered fresh, including milk, eggs and bread, were in short supply by Tuesday. Milk delivery to most stores resumed yesterday evening, but most stores reported being out of white bread yesterday and hoped for deliveries today.

Auto mechanics said they have been working at full speed this week, but have been unable to keep up with the backlog of repairs. Such freak accidents as fan belts freezing to radiators added to the breakdowns which occur every time the temperature plunges near zero.

Tow truck operators also reported lengthy waiting lists, pulling inoperable cars from their snow-encrusted parking places and removing autos which had slipped into ditches and snow banks.

Granite City's new Superintendent of Streets Mac Warfield said of his "baptism of fire," learning street department operations in the midst of Saturday's unofficial 17-inch snowfall and before Wednesday's added inches. "I thought it would be better (to learn) in July."

City equipment, as well as heavy equipment rented from private construction firms, is being pressed into service to battle snow-packed streets turning into rugged icy routes.

Warfield said his 22-man department, as of yesterday, was still on an emergency schedule. Some workers are continuing to put in 14 to 20 hour days before resting to start their grueling cycle again. "The guys are working hard day and night," Warfield said.

About $10,000 set aside for employee overtime was almost exhausted by yesterday, according to the superintendent.

The city's three trucks which are equipped with blades had opened all of the city main arteries — Madison Avenue, Johnson, Fehling and Maryville roads and St. Clair Avenue — by Sunday, but residential areas will have to wait for the limited equipment to reach their home streets.

Trucks have been dispatched as evenly as possible in the city's three of four main residential areas, East Granite, West Granite, the Bellemore Village Glenview area and Briarcliff, Warfield said.

A special effort is being made to respond to calls made by senior citizens trying to reach their doctors. Warfield said most calls coming into the street department are from the elderly, stranded in their homes in blocked residential areas.

Warfield said a radio network in keeping the line open between the

Weather closes area schools until Monday

New snowfall Wednesday was enough to discourage school officials in Granite City, Madison and Venice from planning to conduct classes for the rest of the week.

Granite City Superintendent of School B.J. Davis said he decided to call classes back into session yesterday on a snow schedule when weather reports at 5 a.m. yesterday predicted only a light snow. Updated predictions of heavier accumulations, however, meant a shorter day for students Wednesday.

Davis dismissed Granite elementary students at 1 p.m., junior high school students at 2:20 p.m. and high school students were let out at 1:40 yesterday afternoon.

The decision to hold school this week at all came after bus and car routes were checked late Tuesday and very early Wednesday morning, Davis said, and after a two-day effort to clear school parking lots was made.

"Citizens caused a lot of our problems," Davis said, referring to motorists blocking routes to schools. Attendance for the abbreviated school session was "very poor," said the superintendent. Davis officially called off school for Thursday and Friday at 3 p.m. yesterday.

Venice School Superintendent Robert Vickers reported only 40 of the district's 340 high school students attended yesterday, and only 67 of the 350 elementary students were present. Vickers said about 25 percent of the staff also failed to report.

Classes were dismissed at about 1:45 Wednesday afternoon in Venice.

Vickers said he received a few calls from parents who were unhappy that school had opened at all this week.

Madison School Superintendent John Palchett said his district's attendance count was down by 50 percent or more yesterday. He dismissed both the elementary and high school students ahead of schedule.

"With all this new snow forecast, it would be too much of a problem to try to keep school open," Palchett said, when he announced no school today and tomorrow.

Snowstorm brings out neighborly spirit

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

Neighbor helping neighbor and stranger aiding stranger was the rule, rather than the exception, in the midst of the weekend snowstorm that left hundreds stranded on major highways and arewide appeals to owners of four-wheel vehicles to assist with essential transportation.

No such formal appeals were made in the Quad-Cities, but volunteer drivers came forward of their own volition and gave assistance in many ways.

Among the volunteers were a former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher and a Granite City man whose home was totally destroyed in last April's tornado.

Granite City police said Ray McGee, 2200 Cardinal Ave., was one of 14 local owners of four-wheel drive vehicles, who called police Saturday night or early Sunday and offered to pick up prescription medicine and emergency food items or check on elderly persons without telephone service.

At noon Sunday, McGee went to the Jaycee Clubhouse, 1855 Poplar St., and "rescued" 18 people who had been attending a wedding reception there on Saturday night and were unable to get their own vehicles moving after the heavy snow began to fall.

"McGee's home was destroyed in the tornado and he got lots of help from people at that time. I guess he remembered," a police officer commented.

"Another driver went to pick up a family stranded in Alton and one man drove to Washington Park to see if he could help there," a second officer said.

Volunteers and police rescued hundreds of motorists from stalled vehicles along Interstate 70, between Route 157 and Route 203, and from Interstate 64. Most travelers were taken to emergency shelters in the Washington Park area.

Former Cardinal pitcher John Denny, now with the Atlanta Braves, offered a neighborly hand to Dr. Tom Martin, St. Elizabeth Medical Center chief of staff. The cardiologist needed to get to the Granite City hospital from Chesterfield, Mo., and his neighbor, John Denny, volunteered to get him here in his four-wheel drive vehicle.

They arrived early Sunday. Later, Dr. Martin advised Denny he was going to remain at the hospital overnight and the athlete also decided to stay and help. The two men were there until late Monday.

"John went out and picked up the produce, meat and bread we needed. He brought staff members to work and drove people home who already had been here two days," a SEMC spokesman said.

"The hospital had 100 percent occupancy," the spokesman added. "But not necessarily all patients."

Medical center employees and supervisors, aided by several volunteers, pulled together in an extraordinary display of teamwork to keep all essential services functioning.

Wanda Riggs, a SEMC cook, brought to the hospital about 5:30 a.m. Sunday by her husband, Otis, found she was the only cook reporting for work.

"So, Otis elected to stay with his wife and, between the two of them, they managed to get breakfast for everyone. From a total of 249 members of the nursing service covering all three shifts during a weekend at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 125 called Sunday.

Madison reports 17.7% crime drop

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

Major crimes in the city of Madison for the year 1981 decreased 17.7 percent, the highest decrease in the Quad-City area, with a 60.2 percent clearance of major crimes committed.

The numbers of each kind of major crime in 1981, with the 1980 figure in parenthesis, follow: criminal homicide, two (one), up 100 percent; forcible rapes, one (two), down 100 percent; robbery, 14 (10), up 40 percent; assault and battery, 87 (70), up 24.3 percent; burglary 95, (127), down 25.2 percent; theft, 124 (166), down 25.3 percent, and auto theft, 18 (29), down 37.9 percent.

There were 51 burglaries to residences with 22 cleared by arrests, and the two criminal homicides also were cleared by arrests, although one suspect has not yet been conviction by the courts.

There were eight armed robberies of business establishments and six were cleared by arrest. The two armed

Nolan loss will not stop downtown project

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record

The downtown Granite City redevelopment project will not be deterred by the resignation of its informal coordinator and spokesman David Nolan, the administrative assistant Mayor Paul Schuler, according to both the mayor and his assistant.

Nolan turned in his resignation to the Granite City Council Tuesday night, to be effective Feb. 12. Leaving his job at city hall was an emotional decision, he said.

Nolan said he hopes to take his place as assistant of parks and recreation for the Granite City Park District after that date. The temporary position will be in effect until May, when Nolan is expected to succeed retiring Director Harold Brown. Brown, who served the park district for 30 years, was presented an honorary citizenship plaque from the city at Tuesday night's council session.

Mayor Schuler said the redevelopment project will remain one of the top priorities of his office. Schuler said he and Melvin Wilmaney, president of First Granite City National Bank, last week visited a senior citizens' housing complex in O'Fallon to consider a similar project for the downtown area.

The O'Fallon project contained one and two-bedroom apartments and included 20 to 30 units for handicapped residents. One location, being considered for a similar project here is the Washington Theater building on 19th Street.

Outside financial assistance would be

Delay trash pickups

It came as no surprise to most Granite City residents this week that there were no garbage pickups. First of all, residents could not find their curbs or alleys to place the cans and, secondly, many could not even find their trash cans amid piles of snow.

A spokesman for the Millam-East Division of SCA Services, said Tuesday that the heavy snow made it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for garbage trucks to conduct residential pickups.

The company plans to service all homes on their regular pickup days next week and will pick up the trash from the two weeks at that time, weather permitting.

Attempts earlier in the week to pick up garbage resulted in trucks stuck in the snow and the trucks generally interfering with the flow of traffic and with snow removal efforts, the spokesman said.

Pickups in most alleys was deemed impossible, since no effort had been made to remove or plow the snow from alleys.

Since most residents have already overflowed their garbage cans with trash bags, SCA Services has a suggestion to keep dogs and animals away from the unprotected bags. That is to put a small amount of ammonia in each bag or to sprinkle drops of ammonia around the area where the trash bags are being kept.

TRIES TO USE CARD TAKEN IN ROBBERY

An attempt was made during the weekend to make a purchase here with a Central Hardware credit card that had been taken from a woman in a Kirkwood, Mo., armed robbery occurring Jan. 26. When it was determined that the card had been stolen, a STORE clerk interrupted the purchase of a toaster-oven in Granite City.

A man 6-2 tall, weighing 225 pounds, with a short Afro haircut, unsuccessfully tried to retrieve the card and then fled in a green 1968 auto. He was wearing blue jeans, with a light blue shirt over a dark blue or green T shirt.

Gergeceff promoted at National firm

The appointment of George W. Gergeceff as manager of engineering for National Engineers and Associates, headquartered here, has been announced by Dr. Donald F. Cairns, president of NE&A.

Gergeceff joined National Steel in 1951 as a mechanical engineer at the Granite City Steel Division and advanced through a number of engineering, maintenance, operating and management assignments of increasing responsibility there.

Most recently, he has been assistant to the superintendent of the Energy Management and Utilities Department.

He is a graduate of the University of Missouri-Rolla with a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering and a master's degree in mechanical engineering from Oklahoma State University. He is a member of the American Iron and Steel Engineers and the East State Blast Furnace and Coke Oven Association.

GEORGE GERGECEFF

National Engineers and Associates, a wholly-owned unit of National Steel which was formed in January, 1980, is an international engineering, constructor and management services organization. It provides full-service engineering, technical and consulting services.

ARREST PASSENGER AFTER CARS COLLIDE

Kevin Woodruff, 20, of 2330 Lincoln Ave. was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and obstructing police after allegedly cursing and threatening passengers and officers at a collision scene this week at 15th Street and Madison Avenue. A patrolman was kicked in the face.

Woodruff had been a passenger in the northbound auto of Leslie Jo Acree, 19, Granite City. The right side of her car collided with the front of the auto of Robert Worthen, 26, of 2546 E. 24th St., who was charged with driving a vehicle with no valid registration. The northbound Worthen car had skidded sideways on snow and the other motorist unsuccessfully tried to avoid it.

LACLEDE EARNINGS

Laclede Steel Company has announced that sales for 1981 were $252,722,000, compared with $230,577,000 in 1980. Net earnings for 1981 were $3,935,000 or $1.76 per share, compared with a loss of $788,000 or 44 percent per share in 1980.

New transit management; bus fare, route hearings

The Bi-State Development Agency board of commissioners has approved a transit management contract with ATE Management and Service Company Inc. of Cincinnati, effective Feb. 1, 1982.

ATE will run Bi-State's 1,000-bus transit system with three experienced resident ATE executives providing management.

Michael H. Setzer has been named general manager of transit, and Charles W. Croft, deputy general manager, a third person, unnamed at present, will provide management in transit areas to be transferred to ATE.

The contract calls for payment to ATE of $287,000 the first year, $312,830 the second year and $340,985 in the final year. Salaries and benefits to the three executives will be paid by ATE.

Former St. Louis Mayor John Poelker, Bi-State's interim executive director, remarked to the board that "this contract carries very little additional cost over the direct hiring of three top-flight transit management personnel."

"ATE will bring professional transit management to Bi-State," ATE's corporate headquarters staff of specialists — and extensive experience with a large number of public and private transportation systems — will be very valuable as Bi-State enters a period of rapidly declining funds."

The organizational structure adopted by the board Jan. 29, has an executive director heading the agency and reporting directly to the board of commissioners.

Reporting to the executive director will be Setzer, the general manager of transit, and John D. Booth, the current general manager of development.

Also under the executive director will be certain administrative and financial personnel.

Poelker has agreed to remain as executive director until March 31, and will work with a search committee on the board to find a permanent executive director. Bi-State operates with a balanced budget. As transit costs increase due to inflationary influences and as income decreases due to declining federal operating funds, budget projections show large potential deficits ahead.

The expected shortage of available funds in relation to expenses is $6.7 million in the next fiscal year beginning July 1, 1982.

"Overhead" costs have been reduced more than $2 million by recent administrative staff reductions. The only other controllable means of meeting the projected deficit that are available to Bi-State are increases in fares and reductions in service.

The board approved a fare increase and service reduction plan subject to the outcome of public hearings which will be held in Missouri and Illinois in early March.

Following the hearings, the board will consider the findings and make a final determination of specific fare increase and service reduction actions which could go into effect in early April.

Board Chairman James N. Wilson, Ill., said the findings and make a final determination of specific fare increase and service reduction actions which could go into effect in early April.

"We need the public's views on such things as the desirability of a discounted pass, zone fares, where zone boundaries should be, and hardships that may be created by the service deletions."

The fare increase proposed by the Bi-State staff to the board contained the following suggested fares: local-75 cents; commuter-$1; two zones at 10 cents each; weekly passes-$10; elderly or handicapped-$5; student passes-$3.75; and transfers-10 cents.

At present, the fares are: local-80 cents peak hours and 60-cents non-peak; commuter-80-cents; no zone fare; weekly passes-$8; elderly or handicapped-$5; student passes-$3; and transfers-10-cents. Lines proposed for deletion are: Delmar Express; Hazelwood Rapid; Muni Opera (eight Missouri routes); Newland-Clayton Express; Six Flags; Loughborough; McPherson; Vandeventer; Walnut Park; Wellston-Kingsland; Aviller-Clayton Road; Westport Express; Jefferson; Lebanon Avenue; East St. Louis-Fairview Heights; and Scott Air Force Base.

General Transit Manager Setzer, 31, first worked with ATE as special projects officer for the Metropolitan Transit Commission in Minneapolis.

After he moved to Denver to serve as director of operations planning for the transit district there, he was promoted to South Bend, Ind., as general manager of the Transpo transit system and in 1978 he was named assistant general manager of Queen City Metro, Cincinnati.

The following year, Setzer was appointed deputy general manager there.

Deputy Croft, 65, began his transportation career in Omaha in the maintenance department. There he held increasingly responsible positions, working his way up to assume responsibility for the entire maintenance operation.

From Omaha, Croft went to Wilmington, Del., where he ultimately assumed responsibility as general manager of the system.

He joined ATE in 1971 as director of operations and transportation for the Minneapolis-St. Paul transit system. Two years later, he was promoted to general manager of the Birmingham-Jefferson County Transportation Authority, where he remained until 1978.

ATE Management and Service Company, Inc., is strictly a management and consulting firm, owned by its employees.

The company headquartered in Cincinnati, does not own any transit systems; but manages 38 public transit companies nationwide.

Alleged pimp is arrested

A St. Louis man may face federal charges in connection with a prostitution ring he allegedly has operated in this region, including the three truck stops in Troy.

Robert Goodson, 26, has been charged by St. Louis police and also faces charges issued in Madison County. Federal charges involve interstate transportation of women for the purpose of prostitution.

The Madison County charges include alleged violation of a new child exploitation law. Violation of the Class X felony law is punishable by six to 30 years in prison.

Madison County also has issued a charge of promoting juvenile prostitution against Goodson. It is a Class I felony that carries a penalty of four to 15 years imprisonment.

Law enforcement officials have made a number of arrests in the area in the past year in an attempt to curb prostitution. "This one might be the one to make the pimps sit up and take notice," said Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber.

The work of Troy police officer Jim Burgess helped lead to the charges. Burgess picked up and questioned a 13-year-old girl at St. Louis East Truck Plaza on Dec. 31.

Troy Police Chief Clarence Quinley said the woman had been going from truck to truck. The girl, who gave a fictitious name and said she was 18, was told to stay off the lot.

Burgess later found out the girl was 13, a runaway from Pennsylvania. She was traveling through Troy about four months ago when she talked to a woman who led her to Goodson. Quinley said, the chief said she was unaware of what she was getting into.

The girl was one of several women who were allegedly dropped off at various truck stops and ordered to solicit for prostitution. The woman allegedly lived with Goodson in St. Louis.

The 13-year-old was in the area for a line-up last week and is now "in a safe place," Quinley said.

Snow slows emergency vehicles

By VALERIE EVENED
of the Press-Record

Stalled autos and trucks, youths throwing snowballs and similar snow-related problems occupied Granite City police officers Tuesday as the Quad-Cities continue to dig out of the worst snowstorm in 70 years.

Further problems developed, aggravated some believe by schools being declared open, when snow again began to fall early Wednesday.

"Many children had no place to walk to get to school," one officer commented. "It was pretty hazardous for the kids and the drivers," he added.

Several concerned parents called the Press-Record, expressing dissatisfaction with the resumption of classes when weather, street and sidewalk conditions still were hazardous.

Four calls involving school buses were received by police within a few minutes about 9:15 a.m. Wednesday. Although detailed reports were not available yesterday, it was learned one school bus turned crosswise in the 4000 block of Melrose Avenue, another became mired in snow on Edwardsville Road at 13th Street and a third was stuck at Waterman Avenue and Maryville Road with a dead battery.

A fourth school bus reportedly involved in an minor accident at Route 3 and West Pontoon Road could not be located when police responded.

School buses were not the only ones in trouble. At 10:25 p.m. Tuesday, police received a report that a Bi-State bus was stalled on Fehling Road at State Street and five minutes later, a second Bi-State bus was in need of assistance in the 1700 block of Bremen Avenue.

Throughout Tuesday, officers responded to calls from numerous stalled motorists, including one who had to be pushed off the A&S railroad tracks on Pontoon Road at Sara Avenue.

Other trouble spots came about when tractor-trailer trucks blocked roadways at several locations and after an engine lost its air on the Norfolk and Western tracks at West Pontoon Road and the crossing remained blocked for some time at 2:50 p.m. Tuesday.

The operator of a snowmobile was told to stay off the street in the 2400 block of Harding Boulevard at 4 p.m. Tuesday, and the driver of an auto towing children on a sled on Princeton Drive similarly was admonished by officers.

Perhaps because of emergency numbers being flashed on the television screen at various times, some youths called a telephone operator at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, saying they needed help. The call was traced and an officer was sent to the residence in the 1700 block of Venice Avenue, but no problem existed, he advised.

HOSPICE CANCELS TONIGHT'S MEETING

The annual membership meeting of Hospice of Madison County, scheduled tonight at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, has been postponed, Rose Marie Lindner, Hospice spokeswoman reported today.

The meeting has been rescheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18, at SEMC, she announced.

POLICE CAR FIRE

A Madison police car had a minor fire at 7:25 this morning which was quickly put out with snow by citizens and the officer who had been driving it. A rubber ball mounted apparently overheated. The car was back in service and patrolling in a matter of minutes.

GC mayor seeks help

Granite City officials are issuing a special plea for those with four-wheel drive vehicles to contract the office of Mayor Paul Schuler at 452-6114.

The city is also seeking the names of volunteers who could assist the city in the event of further snowstorms. Those interested in volunteering are also asked to contact the mayor's office. If another snowstorm does hit, those needing medicine, trips to the hospital or other such assistance are asked to contact the Civil Defense office at 877-3157 or the police department at 877-6111.

WOOD RIVER'S LOSS IS GRANITE'S GAIN

Wood River will lose and Granite City will gain as a result of an Illinois Department of Revenue error. Wood River received $63,368 more than it should from the state, which should have gone to Madison County and Granite City. The state will allow Wood River to make the payments in several installments.

AUTO OVERTURNS ON PONTON ROAD

A 1968 Volkswagen, operated by Dale M. Duke, 1419 Fifth St., Madison, traveling west in the 2500 block of Pontoon Road, apparently hit an ice spot on the roadway, slid into a ditch and turned over at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Neither Duke, nor a passenger Jeff Coy, 3001 Maryville Road, reported being injured, police said.

Milton, Warfield assume their new city positions

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record

Despite severe weather conditions and the prediction of more snow on the way, the Granite City Council met Tuesday night with all aldermen present including Alderman Walter Milton, attending his first council meeting as a representative of the Sixth Ward.

New Superintendent of Streets Mac Warfield — sworn into office following the council meeting by Clerk Robert W. Stevens — was praised by the chairman

Man charged with burglary

George F. Becker III, 29 of 929 Greenwood St., Madison, was charged with residential burglary in a felony information document issued Tuesday by the Madison County state's attorney's office.

Becker was arrested at 12:55 p.m. Friday, Jan. 29, outside the home of Steve and Linda Curless, 2137 Benton St., where officers were responding to a burglary in progress call.

One officer found a broken window and observed someone inside the dwelling just before a man, allegedly Becker, came through the front door and began running across the front yard.

The man was tackled by a police sergeant and arrested. An auto belong to Becker, parked in the 2100 block of Adams Street, later was found and impounded.

Becker was taken before a judge at 1:35 p.m. Monday and bond was set at $2,500 cash. He was released at 2 p.m. Tuesday on payment of the cash bond.

MAILMEN NEED HELP AND CLEAR SIDEWALKS

Granite City mailmen worked until approximately 6:30 p.m. Wednesday to be sure that all Social Security checks reached their recipients, but reported the heavy snow and lack of cleared walkways slowed the task.

Postmaster Jack Wilkins described yesterday as "a terrible day for mail carriers" and asked all residents to assist the mailmen by clearing paths to their mailboxes. Clear sidewalks and steps will help and rural residents should clear an area so the cars can reach their mailboxes, Wilkins said.

WOMAN HIT WAITING FOR BUS IN VENICE

Mrs. Cora McCullough, 52, of 2007 Sixth St., Madison, was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 7:40 a.m. today after being struck by a car while she was waiting for a bus. Police believe she was not hurt seriously, although she may suffer a broken wrist and cuts to her nose. She was standing near a snow bank and an auto started sliding, hit the snow bank and was believed to have struck her. No citation was issued to the driver.

STATE STREET BLOCKED

State Street in Madison was blocked for a short time at about 7:55 a.m. today just a few feet north of Fourth Street by two cars. One stopped in the southbound lane and one sideways in the northbound lane. The drivers had apparently left the cars after they became stuck in snow. Police sent for tow trucks to remove the cars.

Campaign to promote state showing results

Governor James R. Thompson said Tuesday that efforts to promote the Illinois business climate through an advertising and public relations campaign are showing results after less than six months.

"Illinois has the resources that companies want when they look for a place to conduct business. We have the transportation system, the financial and human resources and we have some of the best training available in our state university system. Those are the elements companies are looking for when they expand or move headquarters," the governor said.

"What this campaign is doing is making more people aware of the benefits of doing business in Illinois. Expansion of high technology centers, training grants and business recruiting trips are just a part of what we're trying to accomplish," said Thompson. "Sun Belt states now know that they have a serious competitor in the Illinois business community."

Thompson, in conjunction with the state Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA), announced in August a program to solidify efforts to improve the economic climate in Illinois. The program, spearheaded by a symbolic state corporation called "Illinois, Inc.," is administered by DCCA, which issues shares of "stock" to supporters. So far more than 500 private individuals and organizations have bought stock, he said.

"Using the campaign slogan 'Discover the Magnificent Miles of Illinois,' business, labor and academic leaders are working together to spread the word about Illinois, improve the business climate and bring jobs to the state," the governor said. "By improving the business climate in Illinois, we can improve the job climate."

Thompson said that during the first six months of the program, some of the announcements of company expansion and relocation and employment growth in Illinois have included:

—A $155,000 employee training grant for 80 high-technology jobs awarded to Gandalf Data, Inc., by three state agencies;

—General Telephone and Electronics (GTE) of Northlake received a $2.1 million grant from the state, the City of Chicago and Cook County for employee training. The grant helped create 1,000 high technology jobs in the area.

—Expansion of the Interstate Research Park office complex in Champaign-Urbana for high technology firms, a project that will enlist the help of the University of Illinois College of Engineering.

—Opening of the Business Products Center, the first "one-stop shopping center" offering office computer equipment for small and medium-sized companies.

The Center is located in the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

To be announced within the next few weeks are:

—A multi-million dollar investment in a research and development technology center by a major corporation which relocated its headquarters from New England to the northwest suburbs of Chicago last year.

—Establishment by Control Data Corp. of a Business Technology Center in Champaign-Urbana, to offer new, small, high-technology firms a working environment complete with support services.

Related activities undertaken as part of the DCCA's new program include:

—State participation at the Mid-Con Electronics Show at O'Hare Expo Center.

—Illinois Bell Telephone directories for millions of the state's telephone subscribers carrying the "Magnificent Miles of Illinois" theme on their covers.

—Publication and circulation, in cooperation with the Chicago Promotion Council, of the "Chicago Christmas Package" book offering 29 special downtown Chicago hotel, weekend discount packages.

Advertising to promote the state's economic development has appeared or is scheduled to appear in major business journals such as Business Week, The Wall Street Journal, Industry Week, U.S. News & World Report, Scientific American, Dun's Review, Fortune, Time, Area Development, and Plant, Sites & Parks.

Ads promoting Illinois' tourism have appeared or are scheduled in People, National Geographic, Travel & Leisure, Travel Holiday, numerous city magazines and major daily newspapers, in-flight airline magazines, and travel trade journals. Articles have appeared in media throughout the state, including Crain's Chicago Business, the Chicago Tribune and Sun-Times, the Champaign-Urbana Journal, the Rockford Star, all major Chicago, Rockford, Peoria and Champaign television channels, and many other newspapers, magazines, radio and television channels.

Thompson also outlined a series of goals DCCA has set to increase tourism in the state, including:

—Boosting the share of total tourism revenue in the state from 3.2 percent to 4.2 percent and increase tourism expenditures by $2.7 billion annually.

—Raise tourism-related employment by 25,000 jobs, to 150,000, an increase that would represent $287 million in added wages to the state economy.

As part of the program to explain Illinois Inc. to businesses around the state, DCCA representatives have made presentations to business, labor and local government leaders in Rockford, Peoria, Champaign-Urbana, Quincy and others. More presentations are being scheduled.

Corporate mergers topic of discussion

John Meisel, an associate professor of economics at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will discuss corporate mergers and the government's attitude toward them, Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 10:30 a.m. at the university.

Meisel said he will also interpret President Reagan's policy toward mergers and identify which types of mergers the executive office favors.

The talk, which is part of the winter schedule of continuing education sessions for senior citizens, will be held in the Mississippi Room on the second floor of the University Center.

Public hearings on prison sites

Illinois Department of Corrections Director Michael P. Lane announced Tuesday that Governor James R. Thompson has directed him to begin scheduling public hearings at potential sites for a new prison.

"About a dozen communities, so far, have expressed serious interest in obtaining a new, 750-bed, medium-security prison in or near their towns," Lane said. "To be certain we have not missed a location, we will continue to receive expressions of interest from communities until Feb. 15."

Public hearings were pledged to community leaders who contacted Director Lane or the governor's office for preliminary information about a new prison during the past several months.

As was emphasized in meetings with community representatives, an overt display of public support for a new facility will be a major consideration in the selection of a site, Lane said.

A new, 750-bed, medium-security institution costs about $60 million to build across four years. It would employ 425 people when at full capacity. Payroll for employees would total about $9 million, from a yearly institution budget of about $15 million.

Lane projects the department will require up to 2,000 new prison bed-spaces over the next three years, added to the 1,500 new spaces already being planned or built, to meet an adult population demand of more than 17,000.

Local news media will be notified after a hearing is set for a community, Lane said. In addition, local officials will be provided with outlines of specific information on their communities for presentation at the hearings.

Lane said he will attempt to accommodate at the public hearing all those who desire to express an opinion about a new prison in their community.

Dealing with depression is topic of show

Phyllis Whitehead, social worker, and Ron Randall, psychiatric social worker at Mental Health Services, Southern Madison County, Inc., will be heard on WISN-FM Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 11:30 a.m.

The topic of their discussion will be "Dealing with Depression." They will be giving information concerning the different aspects of depression, treatment procedures available, and statistical data pertaining to this issue.

More information about the Speakers' Bureau and services offered are available from Janice Mayberry, 2024 State St., telephone 877-4420.

EVERYBODY HAS SNOW PROBLEMS with this week's unexpected major snowfall. A common sight in the area is seen in Madison as an owner shovels his car out of a snowdrift. Man is not the only creature with problems caused by the heavy snow. Birds can only find food if they are helped. One resident cleaned off a railing and keeps birdseed in it while the snow covers the ground. Cardinals, Sparrows, Doves, Starlings and Blue Jays take regular turns getting the food.

department's office and workers on the streets to assist especially needy individuals.

The blading of residential streets is not being done according to any regulated priority system but Warfield said he is ordering his crews to first plow streets "where the most population has to get up and go to work."

With the equipment the city presently has, Warfield said, it is impossible to clean all streets within the first few days of a snowstorm. "Most people are really nice. They realize you can only do so much," he said.

"A continuous effort—until we get rid of it all," is the attitude the street department has taken towards the snowy street, least owners of automobiles still deep in drifts think they have been abandoned.

"We can get a lot of the subdivisions if no other snow comes," Warfield said. The weather since, however, has not fully cooperated.

The city also is trying to clear some alleys, for instance, on Grand and Delmar avenues, where spot plowing can clear paths for several cars at a time. Warfield said highlights are being used to fit into narrower public access ways to clear them.

City trucks have dumped approximately 250 tons of cinders and about 100 tons of salt on the streets while the city remains well-stocked with backup supplies. Warfield said the city's salt and cinder order was delivered just a few weeks ago.

He noted that a few cars have been towed to clear the way for other motorists. Owners of stalled vehicles were given a day or more of grace, in most instances, to move their vehicles. "We went around a lot of them," Warfield said.

The Briarcliff-Melrose Avenue area presents a particular problem, said Warfield, with water from last weekend's rainstorm laying under inches of snow that came after the deluge. Warfield said he is trying to secure a snow blade, a larger more powerful piece of equipment, to scrape the heavy ice and snow from the streets there.

He said such equipment already is being rented from construction companies by private businesses, but seemed optimistic of reaching West Pontoon with a snow blade yesterday. Regardless, the street department is attempting to clear the streets with their own equipment.

"I'm getting ready to go there now," Warfield said Wednesday morning.

The worst problem facing the street department is the depth of the snow. At first, he said, the city's own snow plows were getting stuck in the snow too, along with the other motorists. Snow drifting from surrounding fields also caused the department frustrations clearing Fehling Road.

Warfield said he could not yet estimate the total cost of the first wave of the snow but though the clean up effort would already cost the city several thousands of dollars. The city is renting costly heavy equipment from two construction companies.

Other other trucks were secured from the city's wastewater treatment plant. "Everyone has been cooperative with the city, and I think we worked it pretty well," Warfield said.

Will recommend restoration of Job Service, WIN funds

Governor James R. Thompson has announced that the U.S. Department of Labor has agreed to recommend restoration of at least part of the federal funding that has been cut from the federally funded Job Service and Work Incentive programs.

Thompson's announcement came following a meeting in Washington with the Illinois Congressional Delegation to discuss the recent cuts and ways to restore the money, including one to fully restore Job Service cuts.

"This is good news," Thompson said. "This means we have made progress in our attempt to restore federal funds that could keep Job Service of jobs open."

"We will continue our efforts to persuade the Reagan administration and Congress to restore these needed funds because this is an important program to put men and women back to work in Illinois."

Donald Shasten, Deputy Undersecretary of Labor, indicated to the Governor and the Delegation that the Reagan administration will announce its recommendation for funding restoration before a House Appropriation Subcommittee.

That Subcommittee hearing will be held to take testimony on a measure sponsored by Representative Sidney Yates of Illinois, which would fully restore the money cut from the Job Service program. The Yates proposal, supported by the Thompson administration, also was discussed at the Delegation meeting Monday morning.

If the Job Service cuts were to stand, they would mean a 20 percent reduction in the federally funded program in Illinois, resulting in the closing of 22 Job Service offices, four regional offices and the layoff of 480 Job Service employees. A 24 percent reduction in funding for the Work Incentive program would mean a layoff of 296 employees and the closing of 11 offices for a total of 776 employees in the two programs.

In Fiscal 1981, Job Service placed nearly 146,000 people in jobs, including 70,000 economically disadvantaged, 14,000 veterans and 23,000 unemployment insurance claimants.

CLINIC CANCELLED
Saturday's monthly free immunization clinic at St. Elizabeth Medical Center has been cancelled due to the severe weather, it was announced this morning. It will not be rescheduled. The next free immunization clinic will be the first Saturday in March.

Madison reports

robberies committed in homes were both cleared by arrests.

There was one strongarm robbery in a home during 1981 and it also was cleared by arrest.

Of the 67 assault and battery cases in 1981 there were 32 cleared by arrest and 41 persons refused to file a complaint or prosecute.

Fines collected increased by $4,592 in 1981 over 1980. For the year 1980, $15,715 in fines were collected, compared to $20,307 last year.

Arrests during 1981, with the 1980 figure in parenthesis, were: traffic, 626 (453), up by 173; adult arrest, other than traffic, 228 (267), down 31, and juvenile arrests 66 (86), down 20.

Alarm calls increased from 1,479 in 1980 to 1,925 in 1981, an increase of 446.

Entire radio, telephone and logged entries to police increased from 32,356 in 1980 to 35,994 in 1981, up 3,578.

Madison Chief of Police Donald L. Bridick said of the decrease in crime, "The police department would certainly like to extend its thanks to the citizens in Madison for their cooperation in solving and preventing many of the crimes and potential crimes in the community.

"Citizen involvement is very important to police work and we urge all citizens to call when they feel that a crime may be being committed, or just when they feel perhaps something is not just right in their neighborhoods."

"The police would rather answer 10,000 extra calls a year, if this would mean even a further reduction in crime," Bridick said.

"We are a small community and a small police force, but with citizens helping out and being alert to what's going on in their neighborhoods, crime will continue to decrease."

"I feel the citizens of Madison should be proud of the police department and the job the individual officers do," he added.

Madison is a great community in which to live and the entire police department would like to extend its thanks to the citizens," he concluded.

At the Madison City Council meeting, Chief Bridick made the year-end report, City Clerk John Bellico read a letter praising the work of Sgt. William Fanning.

"On behalf of the members of the Granite City Police Department, I wish to express our appreciation for the cooperation given by your Sgt. William Fanning, who backed up our officers, resulting in the apprehension of a juvenile involved in an auto burglary Dec. 29, 1981. Sgt. Fanning's quick response came at a time when we did not have a squad (car) in the immediate area."

"Again, I wish to express our appreciation and assure you of our cooperation in all matters of mutual interest," the letter, signed by Lt. Col. George C. Teller, of the Granite City Police Department, concluded.

Chapter holds memorial

Quad-City Navy Mothers, Chapter 850, draped their charter and conducted a memorial service for three deceased members, Margaret Noonan, Elsie Quinlan and Peggy Jones, at a meeting held last week at the VFW Hall.

Commander Elizabeth Ramsey announced the charter will remain draped for a 30-day period, in respect for the deceased members.

She then introduced a guest, Paula Busler, and reported a gift of $100 was received from the Plaster and Cement Masons to help continue the chapter's philanthropic programs.

Notes of appreciation for donations from the local chapter, from medical centers were read and one from the Navy Medical Center in Corpus Christi, Texas, was displayed. The unique card was printed with a note on one side of the enclosure and picture of the medical center on the other side, and was signed by the commanding officer, it was noted.

The group agreed to send four kits to hospitalized veterans in San Diego, and $25 donations to the Memphis Naval Hospital, the Great Lakes Naval Hospital and Naval Medical Center in Corpus Christi.

The special prize for the evening went to Mary Lee Busler and Mrs. Peggy Earhart received the mystery package.

Hostesses Elizabeth Ramsey and Mamie Boyer served a dessert luncheon to 15 members. During the social hour games were played and prizes won by Della Raab, Mrs. Busler and Verna Spurrier.

The next business meeting will be conducted at the VFW Hall on Feb. 11.

Friendly Agers business meet

Mrs. Mina Duggins, president of the Friendly Agers Senior Citizen Club, welcomed 45 members and guests at the monthly business meeting held at Second Baptist Church, last week.

A covered dish dinner preceded the session with the invocation offered by the Rev. W. L. Showers. The group participated in singing several hymns accompanied at the piano by Jack Jenkins.

Readings given by members included, "Heavenly Groceries" by Naomi Rongey, "A Little Prayer For You" by Nina Payne, Also "One Step At A Time" by Alice Hoffman and "God of Missions" by Mr. Gerring.

The Rev. Carl Watkins presented a devotional session taken from the book of John and also gave the closing meditations.

Games were played during the social under the direction of Mrs. Ruby Mayberry.

PWP hears health speaker

Parents Without Partners Chapter 470 heard a spokesman from the Mental Health Services agency discuss raising children in a single parent environment and personal mental health.

The speaker was featured at the group's regular meeting at St. John United Church of Christ, where Parents Without Partners meets every fourth Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The president took nominations for officers, and they will be elected later this month.

The family activities for February include field trips to museums and the Museum of Science and History. Roller skating and bowling trips are also scheduled.

A dance, potluck and show trips are set as adult activities.

Persons interested in Parents Without Partners may call 451-7505, 797-6384 or 877-5895.

Captain and Mrs. Michael Sevcik

Sevcik-Adams

Miss Tamara Jo Adams and Army Captain Michael Charles Sevcik were united in marriage during an afternoon candlelight ceremony on Dec. 19 at Concord Trinity United Methodist Church in St. Louis.

The Rev. Roy L. Baugh officiated at the service.

Parents of the bride are CSM (retired) and Mrs. Kenneth M. Willis of Wakefield, Kan., and John M. Adams of Jackson, Mo. She also is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bloodworth, 2026 Clark Ave. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe L. Sevcik of Tama, Iowa.

Robert Valentine accompanied Miss Nancy Nagle as she sang, "The Wedding Song." "Theme From Ice Castles," and "Song Of Ruth."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a Queen Anne neckline, fitted bodice, and long sleeves accented with lace motifs. Her softly flowing skirt extended into a chapel train enhanced with Venise lace. Her veil, of bridal illusion, was edged with Venise lace and was attached to a Juliet cap. She held a cascade of red roses, stephanotis and baby's breath tied with red streamers.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Michael Shanahan of Cross Plains, Wis., a sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Lisa Griffin of Junction City, Kan., and Miss Juli Cunningham of St. Louis.

They were attired in apple red formal gowns and carried a white fur muff accented with a cluster of red and white carnations.

Mark Sevcik of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen included Gary Sevcik, Des Moines, Iowa, another brother of the groom, and Kenneth Willis, stepfather of the bride.

John William Shanahan, the bride's nephew, served as ringbearer.

Seating the guests were Joe Sevcik of Ames, Iowa, and Brian Adams of St. Louis, brothers of the bride couple.

Greeters and guest book attendants were Mrs. Brian Adams, Miss Camella Sevcik, Marshalltown, Iowa, a sister of the groom, Mrs. William Assall and Mrs. Martin Marriott, the groom's sisters, attended the gift table.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church with Miss Ann Masters and Miss Missy Harris presiding over the cake table. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Round Table Restaurant in St. Louis.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Nurnberg American High School, West Germany, and attended Southeast Missouri State University for three years where she was studying for a B.S. degree in Elementary Education with an emphasis on music. She was a member of the Alpha Xi Delta social society and also a member of Sigma Alpha Iota Academic Music Sorority.

A 1975 graduate of South Tama High School, the groom completed his B.A. in Business Management at Park College, Kansas City, Kan. He currently is serving with the U.S. Army at Fort Rucker, Ala.

After a wedding trip to the Missouri Ozarks, the couple is residing in Delleville, Ala.

Mrs. Ebling entertained the Bunko-Ettes Club at a meeting last week attended by a former members, Mrs. Juanita Blevins.

Those winning prizes in the evening games were the hostess, Helen Lipchik, Leona Delaloye, Julia Portell and Rose Truhe.

Refreshments were served by the hostess after the games to those mentioned and to Angie Buehler, Florida Watson, Ruth Partney and Dorothy Barnett.

Human rights in Central America to be discussed

William Wipfler will deliver a lecture entitled "From Human Rights To Militarism: The Reagan Policy for Central America," Monday at 11 a.m. in the Religious Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Wipfler is director of Human Rights, Office of National Council of Churches and is the author of "Power, Influence and Impotence: The Socio-Political Role of The Church in the Dominican Republic."

Wipfler's lecture is part of the United Christian Foundation's Theologian Series featuring guest lectures speaking on a number of topics in contemporary theology. The lecture will be followed by a light lunch. Both the lecture and lunch are open and free to the public. Additional information is available from the Religious Center, SIUE, 1-822-3246.

Laid-off workers form job aid group

A new organization to aid all laid-off workers was formed last week when former A. O. Smith Corporation employees of the closed Granite City frame plant held an informal meeting at the Jaycee Clubhouse, 1855 Poplar St. Steve Ortiz, who was among those arranging the event, served as chairman and welcomed the gathering of 40 men and women.

Purpose of the meeting was to consider establishing a group to provide assistance to its members in seeking employment. Brenda Darby from the Metropolitan Reemployment Project, with offices located at 1254 Niedringhaus Ave., discussed effective job seeking skills and methods. She also distributed literature and talked about free services available to laid-off workers.

The area-wide reemployment program is sponsored by Civic Progress, Inc. of St. Louis, a non-profit agency. The unemployed group agreed to meet at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at the Jaycee Hall to elect officers and to determine the organization's future goals and their implementation. All laid-off workers are invited to attend.

Miss Darby offered to act as a coordinator and to accept calls for further information at her office, 878-2383. Refreshments served at the meeting were provided by Mick Henkhaus, Madison County treasurer, and the hall was donated by the Granite City Jaycees.

STEAL SOFT DRINKS
An unknown number of soft drinks was stolen in the lobby of a vending machine outside the Clark Service Station, 20th Street and Madison Avenue, reported at 8:50 a.m. Wednesday. An unsuccessful attempt also was made to gain access to a second machine, the operator said.

FUTURE IN JEOPARDY. Venice-Lincoln Technical Center on South 4th Street, Venice, where planning is underway to develop additional nurse aide classes for CETA trainees from both Madison and St. Clair counties. Prospects of continuing the present level of programs at the adult educational-vocational school appear dim after CETA's fiscal year ends in September. Enrollment of CETA students may be curtailed as early as June, according to Duane Rankin, VLTC administrator. Primarily financed with federal funds and administered by the Venice School District, the center offers area residents a wide variety of training programs, such as welding, automotive mechanics, machine shop and bookkeeping, secretarial and GED (high school) courses.

Air Products commits $2.5 billion to growth

Confident in the underlying strength and resiliency of the U.S. economy, Air Products Chairman Edward Donley told shareholders at the firm's annual meeting that the company plans to invest approximately $2.5 billion by 1986.

Donley said the investments will be made in high growth segments of the company's industrial gas and chemicals business, where technology and service are keys to profits.

Air Products operates such a facility in Granite City. Pointing to Air Products' success at managing change while planning for growth, Donley said "No nation or company can afford to focus all of its attention on the present. There must be a balance between short-term rewards and long-term growth." He said Air Products had achieved this balance in the past and will do so in the future.

Air Products' growth in the first half of the '80s will come from existing product lines, Donley said. These are expected to grow twice as fast as the Gross National Product of economies in countries where the company operates. He cited developing markets for industrial gases in coal gasification, heavy oil processing and enhanced oil recovery. Air Products has received major, long-term contracts from private sector initiatives in each of these areas, Donley said.

He added that an expanding research and development program and an active search for acquisitions will help fuel Air Products' growth in the latter half of the decade.

Air Products invested $32 million in research and development in its last fiscal year and received another $16 million in funding from outside sources.

Last week, Air Products reported earnings for its first quarter ended Dec. 31 were $96 million, or $3.37 a share, a figure which includes $2.16 a share related to a change in method of accounting for investment tax credits and 14-cents a share due to the adoption of a new accounting standard which deals with foreign currency translation.

For the comparable year-earlier period, earnings were $92 million, or $1.13 a share. Sale of a minor business that quarter contributed 14-cents a share to earnings.

Excluding the unusual items, earnings for Air Products quarter just ended were $1.07 a share, compared to $1.13 a share for the comparable year-earlier period.

Donley said the company's performance in the recent quarter was respectable, considering economic conditions. Air Products equipment and domestic industrial gas businesses were strong points, but profits in Europe suffered from competitive pressure and currency shifts, he said.

The company's chemical business was down substantially, he noted, primarily because of weakness in the housing and automotive industries. The strong contract maintenance business of Air Products Catalytic, Inc. subsidiary was unable to offset declines in engineering and construction activity caused by industry's low level of capital investment, he added.

Born in Granite City, Mrs. Niepert made her home here for 54 years before moving to Glen Carbon 18 years ago.

Mrs. Niepert had been employed as a sales clerk at Friedman's Furniture and Hardware Store in Madison from June, 1951, until 1965, when she retired.

Survivors include her husband, Wilbert Niepert; one son, William P. Dorris of Madison, three stepsons, Wilbert E. Niepert, Granite City, Dick Niepert, Mulberry Grove, Ill., and Raymond Niepert of DuQuoin, Ill.; two stepdaughters, Mrs. George (Betty) Schepansky, Las Vegas, Nev., and Mrs. Bob (Verna) Trusser, Clovis, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Reacker, Mrs. Grace Bauer, and Mrs. Jack (Gloria) Gieger, all of Granite City; two brothers, Robert Barkley, Granite City, and David Barkley, Florissant, Mo.; four grandchildren, 12 step-grandchildren, and one step-great-grandchild.

Another brother, Louis Barkley, preceded her death.

Visitation will be at 4 p.m. Friday at Lahey-Sedlack Funeral Home, 501 Madison Ave., Madison, where the Rosary will be said at 7 p.m. Friday. Prayers will be said at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, at the funeral home, followed by a 11 a.m. Mass at St. Mary Roman Catholic Church, 16th Street and Alton Avenue, Madison, with the Rev. Frank Kordke officiating. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, Edwardsville Township.

Jane Raymond

Mrs. Jane Raymond, 82, of 1008 W. Cherry St., Carbondale, mother of Mrs. Carolyn Menendez of Granite City, died at 11:37 a.m. Friday, Jan. 29, 1982, at Memorial Hospital in Carbondale.

She had been ill for six weeks and died of an apparent heart attack. Mrs. Raymond was born Nov. 25, 1899, in Presque Isle, Tenn., and had resided in Carbondale since 1920.

She was a 50-year member of the Eastern Star Chapter in Carbondale and held membership in the Past Matrons Club, White Shrine of Jerusalem, Carbondale, and the Household Arts Club.

Mrs. Raymond was a member of the University Baptist Church.

She was preceded in death by her husband, James B. Raymond, who died in 1937. They were married in Jackson, Tenn., June 18, 1919.

Her parents, Albert G. Pearman and Mattie Barksdale Pearman, and two brothers, John Albert and Clarence Pearman, also preceded her in death.

Other survivors include two other daughters, Mrs. Mildred Collett of Rapid City, S.D., and Mrs. Sue Friley of Carbondale; one sister, Ruth Blackwell of Wichita, Kan.; 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Private funeral services were conducted by Dr. Myron D. Dillon and Eastern Star services were held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Burial was in Pleasant Grove Memorial Cemetery, Carbondale.

Rev. Harold Skipper

The Rev. Harold D. "Skip" Skipper, 63, of Houston, Mo., formerly of Granite City, Ill. for one year, died at 10:50 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 2, 1982, at the Veterans Hospital in Columbia, Mo. He had been hospitalized for two months.

A native of Girard, Ill., Rev. Skipper lived in this area for many years before moving to his present address eight years ago.

He had worked at Granite City Steel for 32 years as a crane operator and retired in 1972.

Rev. Skipper was ordained in the Church of God faith. He served parishes at Jacksonville, Ill., West Alton, Mo., Houston, Mo., and Willow Springs, Mo. Rev. Skipper also served as an evangelist for the Missouri State Ministerial Credentials Committee as well as other state committees.

He served with the U.S. Army during World War II.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Laura (Stearns) Skipper; one son, Keith A. Skipper of West Alton, Mo.; two daughters, Mrs. Terry (Marsha) Goucher and Mrs. Andrew (Peggy) Barton, both of Granite City; two brothers, Virgil Skipper, Hillsboro, Ill., and Vernon Skipper, Granite City; two sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Forney, Hillsboro, Ill., and Mrs. Evelyn Cullison, Doniphan, Mo., and seven grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. John W. Skipper, a son, Richard Skipper in 1941, one brother and five sisters.

Visitation will begin at 3 p.m. today at Bob Thomas Memorial Mortuary, 2205 Pontoon Road, where funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Richard Dobbs at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 5. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, Edwardsville Township on Monday, weather permitting.

Applications taken for home heat assistance

Quad-city area townships now are accepting applications from low-income families for grants to help pay some of the high winter heating bills for their homes.

Nameoki and Chouteau townships have announced that applications have arrived at their offices and they have begun processing the grant applications. Other townships are expected to announce the beginning of the application period next week.

The Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission, 3034 Godfrey Road, in Godfrey, has been chosen again as the local agency to administer the program. Persons having questions or other eligibility of the applying household. Renters also are eligible for the programs.

Governor James R. Thompson announced Thursday that local agencies throughout the state are now beginning to take applications under the Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program (IHEAP).

"One-time grants to help households pay a portion of their winter heating bills may range from $95 to $430, depending on income, geographic location and type of heating fuel used," the Governor said.

"We are targeting the program toward senior citizens, the handicapped and all individuals on a fixed income," he said, "but everyone who thinks they may qualify for assistance is urged to apply."

When applying for an IHEAP grant, applicants should provide proof of income, a copy of their current energy bill, and the Social Security number of the head of the applying household. Renters also are eligible for the programs.

Wayne Curtis, the IHEAP Program Manager in the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, advised applicants to telephone their local agencies to determine the hours, days and exact locations when applications will be accepted.

"Some agencies already have begun taking applications," Curtis said, "while others are still in the process of hiring staff to do so."

Interested individuals also may call toll-free, 1-800-552-9643 for IHEAP information.

Exposure to teenage girl

A 16-year-old Granite City girl told police while walking along Kate Street, between East 24th Street and Lincoln Avenue at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, a man in a late model black auto pulled alongside of her and asked where Edwards Street was located.

When she started to reply, the girl saw the man had his hands on her chest and was exposing himself. He then drove away, turning west on East 23rd Street.

The man was described as in his late 20s or early 30s and heavy set, with blond or light brown hair cut to the earlobe. He was wearing a dark overcoat and driving a Thunderbird or a Cougar, the girl said.

reporting they were unable to make it to the center.

"But enough staff members responded, coming in to work by getting rides from people with trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles, so that all three shifts were covered and none of the shifts worked short," the spokesman said.

This type of service was possible because other employees just remained on duty.

In fact, one of the nursing supervisors said, "It was kind of fun. A challenge to get it all together."

"The teamwork is fantastic. All the staff was doing whatever they could and very conscientiously," stated a scheduling coordinator.

"It was not unusual to see staff coming in with suitcases in their hand and with close to 125 calls off, there were many positions which had to be filled."

"It was like a Hilton Hotel at convention time. Committees went out transportation, take home and who's staying where committees. Ten associates from Dietary slept in physical explanation on mats," a supervisor explained.

Unusual duty assignments were shared by many SEMC employees.

A public relations officer said the beds and handled cleaning chores in Obstetrics and a secretary performed the same type of duties in Pediatrics.

At one point, there were three active labors and only two nurses in Obstetrics and an OB supervisor was called in to help when twins, who were not due to be born, May decided it was time to be born in the midst of the snowstorm.

In the Intensive Care Unit, where a charge nurse must be on duty at all times, the charge nurse living closest to the hospital is a new mother who is breast-feeding her child.

The nurse reported to work and brought along the baby, not knowing when she might return home. She continued to care for the ICU patients and nurse her child on a regular basis.

A licensed practical nurse, who lives here and could not get to work at her own hospital, volunteered to come into SEMC and help wherever she could.

Not only did she help out on a voluntary basis, but her husband also made his four-wheel drive vehicle available to SEMC, a spokesman advised.

A senior nursing student and his mother pitched in working back-to-back shifts in X-ray, scheduling, pediatrics and cardio-rehab, it was reported.

The SEMC Security Department has been operating since Sunday with 11 people, plus five or six volunteers. The volunteers are husbands of staff members who have four-wheel drive vehicles.

Since Sunday, the group has picked up between 300 and 400 people bringing them to work. The department vehicles have been turned into "pick up and take home" delivery service, it was noted.

Nolan loss

needed to make such remodeling or construction feasible, according to the mayor. He said he is in constant contact with Congressional representatives and is tentatively looking for a Housing and Urban Development grant.

The mayor said an appointment of Nolan's successor would be "some time off" yet, but one responsibility of any replacement would be the downtown redevelopment project. Schuler said the appointment held by Nolan is "one of the most important" jobs in the city.

Nolan said he has begun briefing appropriate city employees on his work, which is to be distributed to various departments.

Downtown planner Joseph Parente is part-time manpower employee, paid through the federal government's Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) and will remain exclusively with the downtown project. Nolan said Parente will assume the major portion of the Nolan's former redevelopment duties.

"He is picking up everything I can give to him," Nolan said.

In answer to concerns expressed by Granite City Park Board President

George Sykes, Nolan said the only time he planned to give to the project during his park district hours will be in answer to specific questions that might be posed by Parente. He said he does not believe the park should participate in activities that fall within the jurisdiction of the city or any other province.

"As far as my free time, I'll give my moral support and any other verbal support," Nolan said of the redevelopment project.

Nolan felt the mechanism already has been set up for the downtown project regardless of his role in the development. A six-member core committee has been charged with seeing the project through to the point rather than relying on any particular individual, Nolan said. "This group has to be the one that pushes," Nolan said.

The core is composed of members of the city's Rehabilitation Board — Alderman Paul Fisk and Joseph Lucido — and members of the Chamber's downtown retail promotion committee, along with the Alan Richardson, the Chamber's executive vice-president, and either Parente or Nolan.

According to a Chamber spokesman, the four Chamber members who have volunteered to serve in the core revitalization group are Harley Davis, executive vice-president of First Granite City National Bank, Mark Goldenfeld, president of Construction, Ralph Morris, manager of Morris Realty Co., and Joseph Polson, vice president of Granite City National Bank.

Nolan said the group plans to hold its first meeting within the next two weeks and may decide at that time whether or not to become a non-profit organization.

Nolan said he had been in the hospital since Friday and "just had to get out" for a moment.

For the past district, Nolan said he hopes — and believes it is the intention of the board — to keep the programs, which were nurtured and expanded by Harold Brown, such as the baseball and softball programs. Nolan said it will be up to the park board to decide what new programs to bring into the district.

Nolan said he will suggest programs which can be done "at no or little cost" to the district.

Alderman Fisk and Third Ward Alderman Paul Kittel also acknowledged the dedication of Nolan's efforts with the city's Rehabilitation Board.

East Madison, Cloverleaf to be assigned to fire district Friday

A representative of the Illinois state fire marshal's office will meet Friday with Nameoki Township officials and with representatives of fire departments in the township to assign the East Madison and Cloverleaf areas to a fire department for protection.

Until that meeting, the two areas are protected only under an agreement with the State Park Fire Department, which estimates response time from the fire station to East Madison at eight minutes with clear roads.

The heavy snow this week undoubtedly increase that response time, creating "a dangerous situation," in the words of one fireman.

The representative of the fire marshal's office is to meet at noon Friday with Nameoki Township Supervisor Harry Briggs and with the chief and a trustee from each the Long Lake, State Park and Eagle Park fire departments. The meeting will be in the Nameoki Town Hall, 4200 Highway 162.

If the areas are assigned to a fire protection district, the State Park Fire Department will have to pay the additional property tax, which is paid by all residents of that fire district. Briggs said the sum "amounts to" and says it is well worth the additional taxes to be in a fire district and could decrease homeowner insurance rates to somewhat offset the additional taxes.

LELECHE LEAGUE The Granite City LeLeche League will meet 7:30 p.m. Monday, 112 Central Ave. For information on the meeting, persons may telephone 931-4774.

Telecourses: a relaxed way to upgrade education

Being able to earn college credit at home proved to be a plus for many Belleville Area College students who took telecourses, offered at BAC for the first time in the fall 1981 semester.

Telecourses, offered again for the spring semester, helped students in solving problems of transportation, time or apprehension in taking a college course.

Bonnie Schermbach of Collinsville found telecourses a good way for her to attend BAC. "At the time of registration, I couldn't drive to BAC, due to recent surgery, so I decided to take a telecourse," Schermbach, a student in Introduction to Data Processing and General Psychology, said.

"It had been 25 years since I saw school," she added, "so I saw it as a way of easing into it. I had to get back into the groove of studying."

"I enjoyed doing them in my own home. I wished they offered more classes, more often," Mrs. Schermbach, who plans to pursue a degree in accounting or data processing, said.

Marcella Bains of Belleville also found telecourses to be a good way to start back to school. "I hadn't gone to school for 47 years, and I was a bit scared to go to the main campus with all the young students," she said.

Mrs. Bain also had a transportation problem. She decided to take general psychology and Japanese history to give her something to do and to keep her mind active.

"I found it very interesting," she said, "and also very proud of the A's I made because it was the same grade my 19-year-old daughter made in the same classes on campus."

Merrill Discoe, an air traffic controller at Scott Air Force Base, said that it was much easier for him to take the telecourse than to come to the main campus. "It was very interesting, fun, exciting and rather easy to do," Discoe said of his General Psychology course.

Discoe, who is working towards a degree, added that he found the instructor to be very helpful and contact between the student and the college to be very good.

Deborah Hess of Mascoutah said that she found it easier to take a telecourse as she is the mother of four children, does babysitting at her home and teaches guitar and dance.

"I had time to go in to the main campus, but I was able to schedule a telecourse, Feb. 9 to May 8, on KETC-TV Channel 9, America's: The Second Century, a four-credit class, will be aired at 8 a.m. Sundays, Feb. 14 to May 8, on KETC-TV, Channel 9. Tapes of each of the classes are also available at the BAC library at the main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville.

There is no late fee for registering after a class has started, but students are responsible for bringing coursework up to date and viewing any presentation they missed at the BAC library.

For information and to register, students may call 235-2700, extension 300.

More leakage from Wilsonville landfill

Analyses of samples taken from additional test wells sunk on the Earle-Chillico landfill site near Wilsonville, Ill., confirm the presence of relatively high concentrations of an organic chemical compound beyond the perimeter of a sealed trench, the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said today.

The wells were dug and sampled by SCA Services, parent company of Earle-Chillico, following the IEPA's finding during routine monitoring in December, that one of the 20 wells on the site showed strong evidence of contamination. SCA agreed to split samples with the agency for independent

File charge in hospital theft

David W. Coad, 17, Belleville, was arrested on a state charge of theft at 3:50 p.m. Monday, after he allegedly stole four rings from a woman patient at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. An SEMC security officer alerted by a nurse stopped Coad as he was leaving the hospital and allegedly found the four rings in the coat pocket of the Belleville man.

A patient first reported seeing another patient take the rings and hand them to Coad, security personnel said. The patient reported the incident to a nurse who, in turn, notified the floor nurse and a description of the man was circulated.

Investigation was continuing.

FREE GLAUCOMA SCREENING will be given from the Mobile Screening unit that will be at the Madison Lions Home, 926 Madison Ave., (next to G-G Car Wash), Madison from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. Monday, and at the Pontoon Beach Lions Den II, 3901 Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach, from 6 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. The screening is free to the public and no appointment is necessary.

Glaucoma screening in area on Monday

The Madison and Pontoon Beach Lions Clubs are inviting all adults to take advantage of a free screening program for glaucoma and visual acuity to be conducted on Monday.

Glaucoma has a voracious appetite. Every year, in the United States alone, it affects the sight of 4,000 people. More than one million people, age 35 or more, are losing their sight from glaucoma at this moment without knowing it, according to a Lions spokesman.

It is easy, simple, and painless to find out. Although glaucoma is not preventable at this time, it is controllable if detected in the early stages.

"Everyone owes it to himself to be screened," said Lion Mike Papp, screening chairman for the Pontoon Beach Lions Club.

"Glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness, and the Lions want to do their share to protect the people of this community by helping to detect it in its early stages."

The screenings are for adults and they are free. They will be held on the Lions of Illinois Mobile Glaucoma (Eye) Screening Unit, a self-contained unit that travels the state under the administration of the Lions of Illinois Foundation, the non-profit charitable arm of the Illinois Lions Clubs. No appointment is necessary.

Volunteers from the Lions Clubs will be on hand to assist. The glaucoma test itself is administered by a doctor from the University of Illinois, Abraham Lincoln

School of Medicine, Department of Ophthalmology

The glaucoma test is done with an instrument called a tonometer, which measures the fluid pressure in the eyeball. Glaucoma is an eye disease marked by a buildup of that pressure.

Damaging the optic nerve. What is offered by the Lions is only a screening. No treatment or definitive diagnosis is given. If the doctor discovers a suspicious fluid pressure, the person is referred to a doctor for further testing and treatment, if necessary.

Another screening offered on the unit is for visual acuity. Persons failing that screening are referred to appropriate eye care personnel.

"Many people are blinded by glaucoma needlessly," said Lion Bill Gushel, screening chairman for the Madison Lions Club. "We hope the adults in our community will take advantage of this free screening program."

The Mobile Screening Unit will be at the Madison Lions Home, 926 Madison Avenue, next to G-G Car Wash, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m., and at the Pontoon Beach Lions Den II, 3901 Lake Drive, Pontoon Beach, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Warm weather ideas sought for ice rink

The Granite City Park District is looking for a good summer use for the Wilson Park Ice Rink when the winter skating season ends this March. Activities in the past have included "craft shows, vocal concerts and plays."

This summer, park commissioners are asking for a more organized summer activity for the facility. The board members will bring their own ideas to their next meeting, Feb. 24.

Commissioner John "Jeff" Worthen has informally proposed summer basketball team competition, as a possible extension to the present basketball league season. President George Sykes has asked commissioners to consider three-on-three basketball teams, a popular form of basketball competition this year.

As in the past, Commissioner Jack Hood again asked the board to think about turning the rink into a summer soccer field for youths, although the park would have to buy in a covering for the concrete floor. Hood said he would bring back a cost estimate for the necessary rink mat.

The 1975 truck and camper shell of Lester White of Emzee street were stolen last week from the Tri-Mor Bowl parking lot. He regained possession after Madison County sheriff's deputies located the vehicle on Black Lane last week. Its ignition had been punched and the truck's battery was missing.

70th anniversary of Girl Scouts

by DONNA KIMBRO
of the Press-Record

The 70th anniversary of Girl Scouting and the 20th anniversary of the River Bluffs Girl Scout Council will be observed at combined activities and programs beginning March 7 through March 13.

In conjunction with the national celebration Sunday, March 7, will mark the official event and Quad-City Girl Scouts in the various levels will attend religious services at a church of their choice wearing a complete uniform and insignia depicting individual accomplishments in the overall program.

During the 70-year period, Girl Scouting, going and growing, has been a natural resource on which communities and the nation have come to rely. It is a force of nearly three million girls and adults who make a collective impact on the lives of those around them in ways only Girl Scouts can, council officials note.

The council added, going and growing, yet constant as a positive influence on the lives of girls and young women, Girl Scouting in-parts values and encouragement that last a lifetime.

Girl Scouts are contemporary, yet concerned about conservation of the best America has to offer. It is part of their uniqueness highlighted by a 70th birthday celebration that focuses in a caring and unselfish way on another resource—the water in our lives.

Through the years, since Juliette Gordon Low founded Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. in 1912, there have been many changes to compensate for the change in living conditions and trend of interests and education.

One of the latest innovations was the publication of a new activity book, "Careers to Explore" for Brownies and Girls in 1980. The movement made career awareness education a vital experience in the lives of its younger members, and the previous year, Girl Scouts launched a similar "From Dreams to Reality" program for girls 12 through 17, called "From Dreams to Reality."

At the present time the world is to explore through the scouting program include, The World of Well Being, The World of People, The World of Today and Tomorrow, The World of the Arts and The World of the Out-Of-Doors.

Goals set for all Girl Scouts are a deepening self awareness, contributing to society, relating to others and developing values.

As in the past each troop will be encouraged to plan its own activities marking the anniversary week, such as having the mayors of the Quad-City sign a proclamation, put displays in business places, libraries, schools, banks and post offices noting the new Girl Scout logo, pins, handbooks and uniforms for public exhibit.

Volunteer leaders in the Quad-Cities instrumental in coordinating all activities includes Mary Brown, district chairman, Debbie Marshall, district advisor, and Neighborhood Chairmen, Kathy Hahne, one; Barbara Boyer, Rosemary Kerner, three; Dolores Loyt, four; Harriet Evans, five; and Barbara Phillips, six.

21 accidents in 3-day period

Between early Saturday and late Monday, 21 traffic accidents on the snow-laden and icy streets were reported to Granite City police.

Few were serious enough to injure those involved, however, with exception of a mishap at 3:35 a.m. Saturday, in which a station wagon operated by John W. Paterson, 38, of 2439 Woodlawn Ave., skidded on the wet pavement, crossed the oncoming lane and struck a utility pole in the 2900 block of Fehling Road.

Paterson, who was reported injured, told police the vehicle skidded when he was forced to brake to avoid a dog in the roadway.

Wet and snowy pavement was blamed in most of the reported collisions.

Tax preparation is topic of program

"Taxpayers will learn everything they need to know about filing federal tax returns" when public television stations broadcast "Year Tax Return: The Bottom Line on Improving Your Form."

Robert Guillaume of the hit television show, "Benson," will host the three-hour special, which airs Sunday at 1 p.m. on PBS.

Tax experts from the Internal Revenue service will provide advice on completing and submitting tax returns. Phone lines at IRS offices throughout the country will be open during the telecast to respond to viewer's questions. The program, which will be interpreted for the hearing impaired, is produced for PBS by WQED in Pittsburgh, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue service.

IRS representatives will give detailed instructions on selecting and filing such forms as the 1040A, 1040, Schedule A (for itemizing deductions) and Schedule B (for reporting income from interest and dividends).

Expenses related to child care, services and energy saving adjustments to homes, which frequently qualify for tax credits, will be discussed along with the Earned Income Credit, a direct credit for qualifying families earning less than $10,000.

The special also will cover the numerous credits and deductions which older Americans can take, such as the one-time exclusion of profits from the sale of their residences, extra exemptions for those over 65 and special assistance available through the IRS will be discussed. Tax specialists also will provide information of accuracy and of keeping records.

Preparing your income taxes also will be the topic of a special insert which will appear in next Monday's Press-Record. Taxpayers may wish to wait until after Monday to prepare their tax returns to take advantage of the many helpful money-saving suggestions in the insert.

Deep freeze cancels South vs. North mat meet

South has red hot weekend

GRANITE CITY — Coach Red Schmitt's Granite City South High School wrestling team was, unlike the north pole weather, red hot over the past weekend as they edged a good Cahokia team, 29-21, Friday night and then looked very impressive in capturing the prestigious McCler North High School Quad-Meet, Saturday.

The two engagements appeared perfect for war-murphy for the Warriors' important head-to-head meeting next Tuesday with the Steelers of Granite City North for the mythical Granite City overall championship.

The meeting had been originally slated for tonight (Thursday), but has been reset for next Tuesday night at 7 p.m.

Madison dumps Greyhounds

LEBANON — Both the Madison Trojan's offense and defense were in top shape here Saturday as the Trojan's defeated Lebanon 79-47.

Madison's defense froze the Greyhounds in the first quarter. The Trojan's outscored Lebanon 17-6 that quarter.

Madison's offense came around in the second half, and the Trojan's outscored Lebanon 48-28. The shooting of Mark Zarr and the passing of reserve guard John Hughes helped Madison's offense get rolling.

Zarr, a six-foot, seven senior, scored 22 points, and Hughes set up some of those shots with his assists.

Also scoring in double figures for Madison were Avery Crawford with 12 points and Billy Papa with 10 points.

Clifford Bass led Lebanon with 14 points and Robert Jackson scored 10 points. Madison is scheduled to play a pair of tough road games this weekend. On Friday, the Trojan's visit East St. Louis, and on Saturday the Trojan's travel to Hillsboro.

However, due to the closing of the schools, the games will be canceled. Monday's Press-Record, we hope will have a complete schedule of all prep cage games erased because of the blizzard.

North streak in doubt

GRANITE CITY

The long-awaited and highly important clash between the Warriors of South High School and the Steelers of North to determine the City Wrestling Championship was another victim of the Deep Freeze of 1982. Scheduled for tonight (Thursday) at North, both schools called off the crucial clash until next Tuesday night, same site, same time, 7 p.m.

By Roger Kramer

for the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — All Granite City North's wrestling team needs to do is to beat rival Granite City South in their annual dual meet to clinch a perfect season.

The Steelers tonight in a dual meet, but because the Granite City school district cancelled classes, the Steelers will have to wait until Tuesday, Feb. 9, to find out if they'll go undefeated. Granite City South would love to spoil the Steelers perfect season, but Warrior coach Bill Schmitt thinks the Warriors are the underdogs and it will take more than luck to defeat North.

"We're going to be the underdog against North. We'd like to beat North, but I think we'll do it. They have a history of winning because they want to stay undefeated, and be the number one team — not only in this area, they also have a chance to be the best team in the St. Louis area, too," Schmitt said.

wrestling

"Some of our wrestlers have spent a lot of time on their backs being pinned this season. We don't need luck. We need a miracle to defeat North," Schmitt said.

Even though South is having a "down" season, North Coach Walt Whitaker refuses to take the Warriors lightly. "I've heard him talk about how poor his team is going to be all the time, but I know he always comes up with something by the district tournament."

Scott Corey, North's 155-pound wrestler, will try to finish the regular season with a 30-0 record. He will face a strong challenge from South's Jon Frangoullis, who is 21-3 for the season.

Team balance has been one of North's strengths this season. Colin Davis (98), Greg Nemeth (105), Steve Smith (119) and Rod Unger (132) all have won at least 25 matches. Monte Kessler, Bob Patton, John Morris and Dave Owens also have winning records which have given the Steelers a lot of balance.

South, on the other hand is not quite blessed as North, but the Warriors have some very strong wrestlers. Heavy Doug Graham is 25-1, Sam Gibbons (132) is 21-4, Ken Dowdy (167) is 16-2, and Dave Brown (185) is 19-9-1.

"Our best wrestler is our heavyweight (Graham). He really should be wrestling at 185, but he's been a pleasant surprise for us," Schmitt said.

"We could be losing by quite a bit by the time we get to our 'bigger' wrestlers," Schmitt said. "We might be able to win our last four matches, including an upset surprise for us," Schmitt said.

"If we don't lose big in the lower weights, then we'll have a chance to catch them in the heavier weights," Schmitt said.

Besides the Corey-Frank Frangoullis match, the heavyweight match between Graham and Owens should be interesting. In South's holiday tournament, Graham defeated Owens 5-4 in a decision.

Schmitt would have preferred to have the match today because next week is the week of the Class (AA) district meet. Both North and South wrestle at the Bethalto district meet Feb. 12-13.

"Tuesday or Wednesday is the latest date we would want for this meet because we don't want to have a meet too close to the district meet," Schmitt said.

South also has a meet scheduled at Belleville, Ill. on Friday, but it is not known if the meet will still be held because of the weather.

Softball meeting set

The Granite City Park District will hold two organizational meetings for Softball Managers wanting to play in the 1982 Softball Leagues. The Men's Softball organizational meeting will be Thursday, Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Namekiki Recreation Center. The Women's Softball organizational meeting will be Thursday, February 11 at 7 p.m. at the Namekiki Recreation Center. The meeting will cover team registration and general information about the Park District Leagues.

For information, contact the Park Office at 577-9099.

Madison and Venice could meet in regional final

GOING UP with a shot in a recent game is Venice's Keith Marchbanks. The Red Devils are gearing for post-season action — which they hope will mean a matchup against Madison in the Dupo Regional.

If the results of the first round and semifinal games of the Dupo Class A Regionals Feb. 22-26 go as the coaches expect them to go, the Madison Trojan's and the Venice Red Devils will face each other in the championship game.

Trojans, the defending Class A state champions, are seeded first in the regional tournament and are 13-4 this season. The Red Devils, 11-6, are seeded second.

Nether team is worried about the regional tournament yet. The biggest concern for both Madison and Venice is to have practice and get their regular season games in.

Both teams were scheduled to play Tuesday, but both games were postponed because of the weather. This weekend, the Trojan's have road games at East St. Louis and Hillsboro on Friday and Saturday, while the Red Devils play Math and Science of St. Louis Saturday at Venice. It is uncertain whether these games will be played because of the road conditions.

The effects of not playing or practicing may last two weeks. For Larry Graham, coach of the Madison Trojan, the bad weather came at the wrong time.

"I thought in our few games we'd been playing great basketball," Graham said. "Sometimes a team needs a vacation, but we don't need one now. I hope we can get some spring training games in because some of our players haven't practiced in four or five days."

"I really think this could affect our play in the tournament because we have to get back into the swing of things," Graham said. "Venice coach Ken Perkins also is not preoccupied with the regional. 'We are more worried about getting our games and practices in. We want to play well up to the regional and improve game in and game out and build up to our best by the end of the season.'"

The Trojan's have played well in recent games. Madison has relied on a strong bench, plus has received good shooting, passing and defense up and down the line.

"Our bench is really strong," Graham said. "They give our starters a lot of competition in practice."

YBA is progressing
Umpires are needed

GRANITE CITY — The Y.M.C.A. is excited about its Y.B.A. Basketball Program that got underway on Saturday, Jan. 9. The children have been working hard learning the fundamentals of the game.

Phil Slover, Lee Cooper, Vernon Spidel and Ron Benhall are the volunteer coaches.

Parents of the Tri-City Area may take advantage of such programs as the YBA

Basketball Program. There are two age groups: 8, 9 and 10 year olds and also 11 and 12 year olds. Children learn good sportsmanship, teamwork, and such skills as shooting, passing, dribbling, etc. Youth may still join by calling the YMCA.

Y.B.A. is a value-based Youth Basketball Program where each child receives equal playing time and where competition is kept in proper perspective.

We have about nine players who are pretty equal in ability.

"We're shooting well, and we've been playing pretty good defense," Lately, Graham said. "We still have a long way to go. We were just really starting to play well and then the weather got bad and that's keeping us from practicing."

Billy Papa, Mark Madgett, Shannon Madison, Garvel Claggett and Mark Zarr give the Trojan's a strong starting line-up. Reserves Avery Crawford and John Hines have also been an important part of Madison's success so far.

Venice has also been one of the stronger teams in the area. The Red Devils' passing and rebounding ability has helped them get as far as they have.

However, the Red Devils lost Ken Marchbanks, their top rebounder for probably the rest of the season.

Marchbanks just had an appendicitis operation, and he just got out of the hospital. He would be in constant pain because he would be hit rebounding where he was most sore. I doubt if he will be back the rest of the season," Perkins said.

Three players are trying to build Marchbanks' spot. Gary Davis, a 6-foot-5-inch senior, Kenneth Walker, and sophomore Phillip White could help Venice out in the stretch.

"Davis could be the turning point for us. He can do some things in the course of the game that could help us out. Walker has a lot of potential, and White is going to be a total ball player. I'm real pleased with White," Perkins said.

Eddie Salmon, a sophomore, and Harold Milton have given Venice much of its offense and defense punch this season.

"There are a lot of factors that will affect how well we do," Perkins said. "We're still a young team, and we still need to be a little more consistent. The seniors have to be a lot stronger. When they don't play strong, then we don't do well."

"A problem is that people have to realize what role they play on the team. We don't have any plays in which just one player shoots, but there are some people who shoot better than others and there are some who pass better than others. When we play with our heads on, we're good, when we don't we play rotten," Perkins said.

Snow postpones cage games

The heavy snows that hit the Metro-east area Saturday and Sunday caused both Venice's and Madison's high school basketball games Tuesday to be postponed.

Venice was scheduled to play at Waterloo Gibault. The game has been rescheduled for Feb. 17 at Waterloo.

The game between Madison and Roosevelt of St. Louis, which was to be played at Madison, has not been rescheduled yet.

SUPER STARS SPORTS TALK

Youngsters taking over

Wayne Gretzky

At least they didn't until Super Star Wayne Gretzky came along. By the time the Edmonton Oilers' superb center was reaching his 20th birthday last January, he was well on his way to eclipsing a scoring record in the National Hockey League that had been held for a decade.

Singlehandedly, he later took the Oilers into the NHL playoffs, then led them to a three-game sweep over hockey's most imperial team, the Montreal Canadiens.

"He's the only player in the league who can win a game by himself," said a teammate. "He's only 20, and he's torn the league apart two years in a row," echoed an opposing coach. "It's scary to think what he might do before he's done."

Gretzky is hardly physically imposing on or off the ice. At 5'11" and 170 pounds, with blond hair and a boyish face, he looks more likely to be challenging the Borgs and McEnroes than the Broad Street Bullies. Neither is he blessed with great speed.

It's his anticipation, the ability to know where his teammates and opponents are at any time, that makes him so good. That, and great endurance and deft stickhandling and the ability to play hockey like a grand chess master.

Wayne began learning hockey in the backyard rink of the family home in Brantford, Ontario, at the age of three. His father, Walter, taught him the fundamentals a year later. At six, he was playing in a league with 10-year-olds. "I always told him, 'Skate to where the puck's going to be, not to where it has been,'" said his father. "I always felt this was something that had to be learned, not left to instinct."

At 17, Wayne turned professional, signing with the Indianapolis Racers of the old World Hockey Association. Traded to the Oilers as a handful of games, he scored 46 goals and won the league's Rookie-of-the-Year award. The NHL, of course, people said, was not the WHA.

The results, however, were the same. In the 1979-80 season, Gretzky won the Hart Trophy, as the league's most valuable player, and the Byng Trophy, as its most sportsmanlike. He tied Marcel Dionne of the Los Angeles Kings for the league scoring title with 137 points. Last year he showed he was no flash in the pan. He amassed 164 points—109 assists and 55 goals—to break Phil Esposito's mark set in 1970-71. Inevitably, comparisons began to be made with Bobby Orr, hockey's greatest player of the '70s.

"Orr is the greatest hockey player I ever saw," said one opposing coach. "But Gretzky is about as close as you can get."

Wayne's own coach is also high on him (which is more than a slight understatement). "A guy like him should be a national treasure," said Glen Sather. "There's no limit to what he can do."

While critics question Gretzky's scoring records in a league watered down by expansion, the Super Star has also been playing for a club that until recently was decidedly mediocre. Esposito played with one of the best hockey teams ever assembled, Edmonton, on the 1980-81 regular season in 14th place with a 29-35-16 mark. Wayne had a hand in 50 percent of its goals.

The team's record, however, meant little in its best-of-five matchup with the Canadiens. More than a little perturbed with the prediction by Montreal goaltender Richard Sevigny that Canadian Guy Lafleur "will put Gretzky in his back pocket," Wayne scored five points in his team's 6-3 win in Game 1. The young Oilers completed the rout with 3-1 and 6-2 triumphs. Gretzky had a hand in 11 of his team's goals.

The New York Islanders, the eventual Stanley Cup champions, proved too much for Edmonton in the next round. But by then, Wayne Gretzky had made his point.

At an age when most athletes were finding their dreams postponed and their psyches shattered, he was busy earning his nickname, The Great Gretzky.

Ball players wanted

The Granite City Park District is currently accepting teams for the 1982 baseball season. The baseball program consists of eight leagues of teams, each made up of boys ranging in age eight through 15.

The various leagues organized for this year's program are as follows: Atom, for 8 and 9 year olds; Bantam, for 10 and 11 year olds; Midget, for 12 and 13 year olds; Juvenile for 14 and 15 year olds.

No team shall have more than 15 players and not less than 13 players on their official roster. Over 350 baseball games are played throughout the Summer, including regular season games, play-off games at the end of the regular season, and various invitational tournaments to be held.

The entry fee per team is $75 and must be paid before an official roster is given out. Anyone interested in getting a team into the Baseball Program should contact the Park Office at 877-3069.

Floor hockey

GRANITE CITY — The Tri-City Area YMCA has announced plans for a boys floor hockey league. The league will be for boys ages 7 to 12. There will be a league for 7, 8 and 9-year olds and another for 10, 11 and 12-year olds.

The program is scheduled to start on Saturday, Feb. 13 for seven weeks. Cost of the program is $6 per person. Games will be played from 1 to 5 p.m. Registration deadline for the floor hockey league is Feb. 4.

Umps needed

Anyone wishing to umpire in the 1982 Granite City Park District Softball League should attend the Softball Umpires meeting scheduled for Monday, Feb. 8, 1982, 7:30 p.m. at the Nameoki Recreation Center. Ray Hoffman, Softball Umpire Supervisor, will conduct this important meeting.

Buying a used car? There are some things that you can check yourself that may save unnecessary grief later. With the transmission in neutral, race the engine and check the exhaust. White smoke is normal. Black smoke can indicate an untuned engine while black smoke hints at one that is worn. Engage the parking brake then shift into gear and depress the gas pedal slowly. If the car will not overcome the brake, the clutch or transmission may be faulty. This test is not possible in cars equipped with parking brakes that release automatically when the transmission is put in gear. When buying a used car, it is important to avoid problems in advance whenever possible and to buy only from a dealer that you can trust.

When you do buy a used car your best bet is to take it to a mechanic and have the car checked out. No one intentionally tries to sell a used car with problems but to protect yourself and your wallet hit BIG 4 CHEVROLET COMPANY look the car over. ## EX-SIUE Coach Roy Lee to be honored

Summers to attend roast Feb. 21

GRANITE CITY — John "Champ" Summers, who was "discovered" by Roy E. Lee at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, will attend the Roast and Dinner for Coach Lee Sunday, Feb. 21, at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Edwardsville. Early ticket sales point to a 400 to 500 person turnout.

Summers, a major league ball player for eight years, is currently a member of the Detroit Tigers. He started his career as a member of the Oakland farm system.

However, when the Madison, Ill. native was preparing to enter his senior year at SIUE-Edwardsville in the Fall of 1970, the farthest thing from his mind was the sport of baseball. In fact, Summers had never played any organized baseball up until that time.

He played football, basketball, golf, tennis and a lot of swimming and diving, but no baseball. Oh, it's true that he'd starred in a lot of fast-pitch softball. Oddly enough, the summer of 1970 he'd led the Granite City park district's fast-pitch league in homers as he averaged two per seven inning contest.

So, when Coach Lee inaugurated fall baseball workouts in 1970 at SIUE, Champ Summers decided to give the hardball version of the diamond sports a looksee. Incidentally, Summers played a key role in the fashioning SIUE's first winning basketball season under the then new coach, Jim Dudley, in the 1970-71 campaign.

Now, 12 years later, Summers would like a change of scene; he feels that, if he can play every day, both right and left, unlike Sparky Anderson seen him at Detroit, he could hit .300 or better.

Says Champ, "As for my ranking the past two years, if I were to become a free agent this season I would have been ranked 22nd out of 142 players behind guys like Rod Carew, Mayberry, Luzinski, Fred Lynn, etc. Hard to believe, isn't it?"

"I ranked third as a designated hitter in the American League in 1979 DH's; my 'On Base' percentage was No. 1, I was sixth in Runs Batted In, I hit seven homers and ranked seventh in batting average. This is taken over the last two years and does not even include 1979 when I hit .313 with 20 fourbaggers in 240 times at bat."

CHAMP SUMMERS
To be here for 'Roast'

The dinner for Roy Lee will be the climax of long and exciting baseball career for the "Old Gray Fox" as his many Cougar players dubbed him. Highlight of his career, from a professional standpoint, would be the short stint with the old New York Giants at the tail end of the 1945 National League season. But, he very probably treasures most his coaching record at St. Louis U. and at SIUE-Edwardsville. Lee directed the Bulls to the finals of the Little World Series of collegiate baseball at Omaha. Three times, he called the shots of his SIUE-Cougars march to the NCAA division II championship finals at Springfield, Ill., where his charges finished second, third and fifth.

Tickets for the dinner are: $25 per couple, $15 per person. Phone orders for tickets may be called to 452-0423 for those persons living in Illinois and St. Louis city without charge. Edwardsville residents call: 656-4192. Mail orders, checks made out "Lee Dinner," 2520 State Street, Granite City, Ill. 62040. Lee, who resigned as coach at SIUE three years ago, will be pitching coach for the Haymans-Civics and semi-pro team this summer.

Travelers talk of islands, sun

Miss Betty Townsend was elected president of the Travelers Abroad organization at the January meeting. Mrs. Mary Evangelist, outgoing president, conducted the business meeting.

Membership dues, which have been at a reduced rate for several years, were restored to their original $3 rate due to increased postal rates and other expenses.

Walter Klein and Ernest Reuland, the nominating committee, presented the following persons to complete the list of recommendations: program chairman, Miss Alice Purdies; arrangements chairman, Miss Betty Applegate and Mrs. Ann Turner; treasurer, Don Rolland; secretary, Mrs. Helen Krumieck; and publicity chairman, Mrs. Barbara Williams. All were elected by acclamation.

BETTY TOWNSEND

Miss Townsend, currently the program chairman, introduced Stair Farm Agent Bill Frazier, who presented a slide program on "Charting Your Own Bareboat in the Virgin Islands."

The term "bareboat" means that no crew is included when one rents a boat. A renter receives an equipped boat but must supply his own crew and food supplies.

Each person to be included on a boat of this type must exhibit to the lessors of the boat that he is capable of handling the vessel before it is allowed to leave the harbor.

Most of the 13 persons involved in his sailing vacation flew to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and from there to St. Thomas Island in the Virgin Islands, where they were checked out on the two boats.

It was noted that all flight times mean little to some of the airlines, which flew at their own casual pace.

Charlotte Amalie, capital of St. Thomas, was too commercialized and uninviting to this group.

The speaker recommended skipping St. Thomas entirely. St. John proved to be more interesting, but Frazier said his group wished that it had proceeded directly to the British Virgin Islands, which were their eventual cruising destinations.

After going through British Customs, an agonizingly slow process, and securing the necessary permits, the group enjoyed visiting and cruising around the islands of Tortola, Mosquito, and Virgin Gorda.

Another visited was Norman Island, or "Treasure Island," after which Robert Louis Stevenson named his famous book. The group was unable to enter the caves on Treasure Island due to tidal conditions on the days it was there.

Informal clothing was in demand most of the time, even when the group went ashore for touring, shopping or dining. The 13 slept on their two boats each night, and the speaker cautioned that quarters are cramped on small boats.

The five young persons in the group spent much of their time in the water picking up sea specimens. They even had a baby octopus for a short time.

A strange sight that was noted in the slides was the wearing of heavy athletic socks while swimming and diving. The reason: One occasionally cannot rent the correct-size gear and must improvise.

Muscles were developed by some from rowing their dinghy from the mooring spot in the water to shore. The dinghy would hold only two persons, so that meant several trips if everyone went ashore.

The advice given here was—if you take such a trip, be sure your dinghy has a motor in the water to shore. The dinghy would hold only two persons, so that meant several trips if everyone went ashore.

It was a shock, Frazier said, to return from a warm sailing vacation and encounter winter weather.

One guest, Mrs. Thelma Murday, and 31 members were at the meeting.

TELETHON STARS. Monty Hall, television personality, and the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders will return to St. Louis Feb. 27 and 28 to headline the 16th annual St. Louis Variety Club Telethon. The event will be seen on KSDK television. Tickets for the event are $125 per person and it will be held in the Khorassan Room of the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel. The telethon has raised more than $8 million in the last 16 years to aid emotionally and physically handicapped children in the region.

Trip to England to study hospice planned

The School of Humanities at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will again offer a two-week work-study-travel course this summer for nurses, therapists, social workers, counselors and others who would like to learn more about the British hospice concept.

The trip will include 10 working days at St. Luke's Nursing Home in Sheffield, England, approximately 200 miles from London.

Hospice units specialize in the control of severe pain and other distressing symptoms that usually accompany dying. The goal of the hospice is to maximize the quality of life that remains and to respond to the needs of the dying and their families.

Courses will include a two-day orientation, at least one day each with the morning and afternoon work shift, a day with the hospice's day unit, a morning with the hospice's therapist, doctors' and medicine rounds for nurses, and individually scheduled time with the hospice's social workers, home-care staff, chaplain, volunteer director, administrators, and other personnel, as well as a debriefing period.

Study and nursing activities will be coordinated by Charles A. Corr, professor of philosophical studies at SIUE. Eight continuing education units will be granted to those participating in the trip, with the possibility of academic credit arranged for those who desire it.

The trip will extend from June 26 to July 10. Registration for the trip will be contingent on transportation costs and monetary exchange rates, but should be in the $1,100 to $1,200 range. Individual arrangements may be made for those who wish to join the group in England or stay on afterward for a personal vacation.

Corr said that although it is essentially a work-study trip, ample time will be available for sightseeing, shopping and experiencing the British culture. "Sheffield is on the edge of the Derbyshire moors—magnificent scenery—and quite near to Chatsworth House—home of the Duke of Devonshire, Haddon Hall, and other sights. The walled city of York, with its medieval streets and magnificent cathedral, is within easy reach for a day trip," Corr said.

The SIUE professor is well-known for his research in the field of death and dying. He has made four

Schuler tours A O Smith

Mayor Paul Schuler recently toured the A.O. Smith plant on Highway 3 to find rumors untrue that rains had damaged the roof of the structure.

Schuler said stories of a neglected roof partially destroyed by water had prompted the visit, but the mayor said the building showed no signs of deterioration.

The building is being staffed by a skeleton crew of the A.O. Smith Corp. which has moved some of its plant presses out recently to be sold.

Schuler said he and the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce are always looking for a potential occupant for the building.

HURT IN 3-CAR CRASH

Wendy Demontmollin, 2001 Madison Ave., was arrested for careless driving and was injured in the 2600 block of Madison Avenue last week when her north-bound car hit the rear of the parked auto of Eliseo Fibueras, Des Peres, Mo., knocking that vehicle against the parked car of Deborah Krpan, 2612 Madison.

GC job hunt office funded

With Civic Progress providing $150,000 to operate Metropolitan Re-Employment Project offices, one is operating at the Coordinated Youth Services, 1254 Niedringhaus Ave., Granite City, where Brenda Derby is the career counselor. The telephone number is 876-2383.

The other MRP location is St. Louis Community College at Forest Park, 5600 Oakland Ave. The program serves employees and employers affected by plant closings and layoffs in the metropolitan area. Co-sponsors are the New Spirit of St. Louis Labor-Management Committee and the Regional Commerce and Growth Association.

The funding was announced by Clarence C. Barksdale, Civic Progress chairman. MRP Director Mike Maguire said, "It is unique for private businesses to make this level of commitment for a project of this nature."

MRP was formed in 1981 to help laid-off workers find new jobs. Brenda Derby says, "We provide free services to persons who would like assistance with conducting an effective job search, resume writing, retraining information, or professional counseling on coping with unemployment." "When individuals have been employed most of their adult lives, they sometimes find it difficult to know how or where to begin looking for a new job."

She participated in a late-January meeting at the Jaycee clubhouse attended by 40 former A. O. Smith Corp. auto frame plant employees. They will meet again Feb. 13.

Out-placement services also are offered to firms which want to prepare their laid-off staffs for job hunting. A one-day workshop called Job Shop is given at company sites or at the Forest Park college; the day includes interviewing skills, job search strategies, and instruction in writing resumes and cover letters.

MOTORIST CHARGED

Douglas D. Williams, 17, of 323 W. Chain of Rocks Road, Mitchell, was arrested last week for driving the wrong way on a one-way street, Grand Avenue, driving without a license, and improper use of a license plate registration. He was freed on bond pending a hearing.

Seniors to study ceramic teapots

Anatomy of a teapot, a demonstration of the step-by-step process an artist uses to shape a ceramic teapot, will be the subject of the weekly Dialogue with Senior Citizens Feb. 10 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Dan Anderson, associate professor of art and design at SIUE, will start with clay of proper consistency, add the handle and spout, then shape the lid for the finished product. "It's a sculptural work," he said of the process. "The spout is like an arm on the body."

Anderson also will show slides of a national exhibit of the best in teapots from contemporary artists. "Many of the artists don't make teapots, but they were asked to contribute one for this collection," he said of the exhibit that visited SIUE last May. Free poster souvenirs picturing the entire 70-piece collection will be available.

The dialogue series, sponsored by the Gerontology Program at SIUE, meets each Wednesday from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in the Mississippi-Illinois Room of the University Center. Admission is free.

For additional information or a complete listing of the programs, interested persons may contact Anthony J. Traxler, Gerontology Program director, at 692-3454.

Philippians 4:13... "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

The above Scripture is one of the most powerful statements in the Bible. It means just what it says. The problem is, so many times we find ourselves struggling just to do one thing, let alone all things.

Here's how to make this Scripture come alive for you. Don't be discouraged because you're not on top of everything. Don't believe for one minute that Christ has forsaken you. Through Him you can do all things.

Turn the Scripture around. Yes, that's right. So that it says, "Christ strengthens me!" Repeat it over a few times. Say it out loud. Christ will be granted to those who strengthen me. With His strength in me, I can do all things! That's it! Christ is my strength, so I can do all things. Now that you know it, put it to use.

Go something for Him. Today.

In subzero weather this letter from Illinois Power taught me how to keep warm

It's about their National Energy Watch program. All homes waste a certain amount of energy, and mine was no exception. Problem was, with the weather we've had this winter it's been costing me a bundle, and I didn't really know what to do about it.

But the folks at Illinois Power had the answers. Their Energy Use Advisor checked the attic, basement, walls, furnace—the whole house from top to bottom, inside and out. He knew what to look for.

Then he typed all the information about my house into a portable computer terminal he brought along. I got the calculations right on the spot. Now I know what needs to be done, what it will cost, and how quickly the energy savings will pay for the improvements. The National Energy Watch service only costs $15, and you know, when I think about lowering my heating bill I get a nice warm feeling all over—even on a subzero day.

Watch the mail for your invitation to participate in the National Energy Watch Program, or call the Energy Use Advisor at your local Illinois Power Customer Service Center.

Gen'l Steel near merger with Lukens

Merger plans have been announced by General Steel Industries, Inc., which said it achieved 1981 net income before tax credit of $6,777,000, or $1.74 per share of common stock, compared with $3,508,000 or 96 cents per share in 1980.

J. A. Van Sant, chairman and president, said net sales and other revenues were $134,773,000 in 1981, compared with $82,331,000 in 1980.

Van Sant said the higher sales and earnings in 1981 reflected "improved participation and strong profitability of our off-site services operations, as well as expansion in the market resulting from purchase of three new pipecoating plants in the West in early 1981."

GSI also recorded better earnings in several divisions serving basic industry, countering national economic trends.

The St. Louis-based industrial machinery and services company reported net income after tax credit of $2,277,000, or $2.13 per share of common stock, in 1981, compared with $5,465,000 or $1.45 per share in 1980. The tax credit represents tax benefits from losses and expenditures related to discontinued operations.

The results were announced following a meeting of the board of directors in St. Louis at which an agreement and plan of merger was approved.

Under the agreement, Stewart Properties, Inc., a subsidiary of Lukens Steel Company, Coatesville, Pa., will be merged into General Steel Industries.

The surviving corporation will become a wholly-owned subsidiary of Lukens, a successful producer of plate steels and plate steel shapes. It is expected that the merger agreement will be signed in the near future.

The GSI board met March 18 as the date of a special meeting of shareholders to act on the merger. Feb. 18 has been set as the date of record for determination of shareholders entitled to vote at the special meeting.

The proposed merger is the final step in a series of transactions pursuant to an agreement dated Dec. 14 between General Steel, Walco National Corp. and Lukens Steel. At the effective time of the merger, all GSI shares then outstanding will be redeemed and each shareholder will receive $16 per share.

Walco will sell to General Steel at $19 per share the 750,000 GSI shares which Walco purchases pursuant to its tender offer which expired Jan. 22.

GSI said Monday it has been informed by Walco that 2,048,864 shares have been tendered. Under terms of the Walco offer, Walco will purchase 750,000 shares on a pro-rata basis from among those tendered.

This represents 36.7 percent of the shares of General Steel tendered to Walco.

W. R. Wilson, president and chief executive officer of Lukens Steel, which will become the parent company of General Steel, has announced that General will be operated with its present corporate and divisional configuration as a wholly-owned subsidiary.

Headquarters and management will remain in St. Louis, with all present officers continuing in their management positions. General Steel provides machinery, equipment, supplies and services to a wide range of basic industrial and energy markets. The company operates 21 manufacturing and processing plants.

Optimism marks summary by president of SIUE

President Earl Lazerson of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville expressed optimism in his second annual address to the university community while reviewing a long list of budgetary, academic, operational, programming, governance, space and policy issues and announcing a number of new initiatives for the year ahead.

Calling for cooperation and dedication to "a never-ending pursuit of excellence," President Lazerson said, "In a time of declining resources, all segments of the university must work closely together in planning the most efficient use of the means available. I am confident that we will never accomplish all that we want to achieve, but I ask you to join me in a common insistence that what we do be done well. If we unite in that resolve, I will have no qualms about our ability to deal with the problems of the '80s."

The president spoke at 3:30 p.m. from the stage of the University Theater in the Communications Building with his address taped for later broadcast on the campus radio station.

Beginning by detailing the prospect of major higher education program reductions by the federal government in the next two years, President Lazerson said it has been estimated that by September 1983, the university's current level of federal student aid support could be cut by $1.5 million or 45 percent over the current year, with a decrease in the number of recipients from 3,600 to 1,900.

The president said cost in federal funding also will result in decreased dollars available at the state level for funding social and developmental services. "In spite of these problems," he said, "the university has maintained its commitment to improving faculty and staff compensation," Lazerson reported as he reviewed the Board of Higher Education recommendations for Fiscal Year 1982 and a wide range of other budgetary issues.

President Lazerson said tuition increases and state level reduction will be necessary to provide the levels of compensation and programming included in the IBHE budget recommendations. Other budgetary highlights of the president's address included:

—SIUE will receive a negative adjustment of $100,000 in FY 82, higher than average instructional costs;

—The School of Dental Medicine will receive $200,000 per year base budget reduction for the next three years because of high operating costs and projected decreases in enrollment.

—A 1.5 percent "productivity tax" amounting to approximately $32,000 will be levied by the IBHE against the University; each unit will receive a negative adjustment of 1.5 percent on its personnel base;

—An internal allocation of about $200,000 will be necessary to fully fund seven percent salary increases on July 1 and a two percent catch-up increase beginning Jan. 1, 1983;

—Supporting Services will provide a $150,000 contingency fund to meet increased energy costs due to deregulation in the price of natural gas.

—All units will be required to carry a two percent reserve for FY83; —The planning process for FY83, initiated in July 1981, created a reserve in the amount of $1.85 million;

—Because of base reductions, increased enrollments, better retention and resources allocated to public service, average instructional costs have been reduced seven percent since last year;

—The FY84 planning cycle will incorporate a negative base adjustment of $740,000, salary increases on 90 percent of the personnel base and a productivity tax on the personnel base of one to two percent;

—The IBHE's recommended capital budget for SIUE includes $875,000 to complete the multipurpose building and $140,000 for operation and maintenance of the facility during FY83, and —The IBHE's favorable action to continue the School of Dental Medicine has resulted in several capital improvement recommendations, including $270,000 for planning funds for a clinic facility costing $4.5 million at the Alton campus, $600,000 for expansion of the satellite clinic at the East St. Louis campus, and $140,000 for the first of a three-part, $975,000 project to renovate the Alton campus.

Further, a music component has been added to the Performing Arts Training Center, and Dr. Barber Teters, vice-president and provost, is working with academic units to provide courses in accounting, data processing, nursing, black studies, special education and early childhood care and possibly others on the East St. Louis campus. Other program and activity decisions are announced by President Lazerson included:

—The University will continue to support programs involving School District 189 in East St. Louis, including science awareness and music; economic development; and supported through agencies such as Target 2000 and the East St. Louis Development Corp.

The University's contract with the Illinois Educational Consortium for the use of MIOC computer facilities will be continued and expanded computer cooperative relationships with other institutions will be explored; —The student housing of the university is being developed by an engineering and architectural firm, and a financial adviser for this project has been employed; —Legislative Audit Commission concerns regarding state funding of university enterprises are being studied, and a task force report on athletics is being reviewed; also, a request for school status for the department of engineering is being considered; —Calendar conversion possibilities are being examined from several perspectives with the hope that there can be an early resolution of the matter.

On university governance, President Lazerson said he believes the current system is well designed to serve the purposes of SIUE. "I do not present it as perfect, and I trust that refinement will continuously occur as circumstances require. However, I am satisfied that it is an organizational pattern which provides forums for the hearing of every voice that has a legitimate cause to be heard," the president said.

He added: "With the exception of those areas specifically reserved to a clearly-identified, final decisions must be made by the president within the charge, responsibility and authority with which he must answer for those decisions to the chancellor and board of trustees."

In conclusion, President Lazerson acknowledged dramatic changes in American higher education over the last two decades, but he said, "Despite these changes, there has been a sustaining constant, a binding thread of singular importance, running through every stage of educational evolution—an undaunted, unchanging concentration on the achievement of excellence... While there will always be differences of opinion as to how it may best be achieved, a university without a never-ending pursuit of excellence will be poor in spirit and doomed to failure."

County must correct fire hazards in old courthouse

By JIM SCHLUETER Madison County has been ordered to correct 14 violations of the state fire safety code in the county courthouse. But county officials wonder where the money will come from to pay for safety improvements.

Officials from the state fire marshal's office visited the courthouse last week to hear the county appeal seven of 13 violations cited in an inspection of the courthouse last September.

Not only were the seven appeals denied, but another violation was found during a tour of the courthouse. The new infraction was found in the traffic violations office of the circuit clerk. Storage in a basement air conditioner room was found to be removed immediately. Meanwhile, the county has 90 days to submit plans for complying with the 13 violations.

But county representatives, which included Charles Bode, Edwardsville, and James H. Gentry, members of the county board's buildings committee, and county Director of Administration Mary Kane, said that the county would have problems paying for the improvements.

"We don't have any money to do these things," Mrs. Kane said. She pointed out that the county has spent more than $500,000 in improving the shelter care home and the nursing home. Although no estimates on the cost of the compliance have been made, it is assumed that the cost will easily exceed the $76,000 the county approved last year to bring the old Bank of Edwardsville building into fire safety compliance.

"We've been put into the position of asking for an extension," Mrs. Kane said. "They've been talking in terms of scheduling."

The schedule for correcting the different violations could be based on the time and money needed to comply with each regulation. For example, adding a second means of exit from the basement jury room calls for adding steps to a window which could be pushed for escape in an emergency.

But some other infractions won't be as easy to correct. The county appealed orders to enclose all courthouse stairways and corridors with fire-resistant doors. Elliott suggested 14-inch wire glass doors in a metal frame for the stairways, but he said the county may pick any type of door that was approved by the state fire marshal.

Bode complained that the county would ruin the architectural style of the 70-year-old courthouse and that getting fire resistant doors on the court with decor of the courthouse would be costly. "The buildings of colonial Williamsburg (Va.) were made fire safe," Elliott said. "I think it can be done here." Elliott said the buildings "relatively safe," and that there is no danger of the courthouse burning down. However, he said the large amount of paper and other combustible materials could result in costly fire and smoke damage and life-threatening situations, if a fire should occur.

"There are some horrendous amounts of paper stored, but the building will be destroyed, but our concerns are the contents of this building and the people who work here," Elliott said.

Elliott said that the highest priority items along with removal of the storage in the basement air conditioner room is the stairway enclosure and the installation of an automatic fire alarm system. He said that a reasonable time will be given to make plans and solid bids, and he also said he is sympathetic with the county's financial position.

"I can't see getting into a position to run the courthouse bankrupt," Elliott said. "What good would that do?" However, Elliott said that the counties which have complied with orders in the past have been taken to court.

Elliott said he would be advising the county on that situation, noting that the county's fire improvements as a sign of cooperation.

He added: "With the exception of those areas specifically reserved to a clearly-identified, final decisions must be made by the president within the charge, responsibility and authority with which he must answer for those decisions to the chancellor and board of trustees."

How to ease pain of osteoarthritis

Q. Is there anything that can be done to lessen the pain of osteoarthritis and to improve the victim's mental attitude? — W.H., Denison, Ohio.

A. Osteoarthritis is the common joint disease which afflicts people. During its course there is a gradual wearing away of cartilage which cushions the bone against bone movement in the joints.

The outlook for patients with osteoarthritis is quite variable, depending on the particular joints involved, but it is generally good.

Involvement of the joints in the fingers, the commonest form of osteoarthritis, is usually associated with a moderate amount of pain when it first appears, which then gradually subsides and over the course of years will wax and wane. Although the joints may become quite knobby and even bony, the arthritis generally does not cause any loss of hand function.

Involvement of the larger weight-bearing joints, especially the hips and knees, and involvement of the spine, particularly in the neck, may more often be associated with severe symptoms and greater disability.

Although there is no known way to prevent osteoarthritis, or to "cure" it, there are a number of measures available to lessen the pain, which include:

— Limiting physical stress to the joints by providing adequate daily periods of rest to the involved joints. Avoiding trauma to, or abnormal use of affected areas, use orthopedic appliances, such as crutches, canes, walker, cervical collar, or elastic bandages to stabilize and relieve stress on the weight-bearing joints, and reduction in weight, if obese and weight-bearing joints are involved.

Physical therapy modalities, including heat and massage, help to reduce symptoms when they flare, and a supervised exercise program will help to stabilize the joints and minimize symptoms.

Use anti-arthritis drugs which are pain killing and anti-inflammatory, and if a single joint is severely involved out of proportion to others, the injection into that joint of crystallized cortisone.

— If the degenerative joint disease progresses sufficiently far, surgical procedures, particularly in the weight-bearing joints, using artificial joint replacements, are quite successful in relieving pain and regaining motion.

It should be emphasized that only a small percentage of people with osteoarthritis have sufficient symptoms to warrant any form of continuing medical management.

— Dr. Harry G. Bluestein, associate professor of medicine, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Q. I would like to know more about tuberous sclerosis, a calcium deposit on the brain. My grandchild was born with this condition and is currently being treated for spasms in relation to it.

Also, what are the chances of not being retarded, and does a child like this have a normal life span? — J.D., Delaware, Ohio.

A. Tuberous sclerosis is a disease which affects several parts of the body. Indication of the disease is noted through the skin, a special type of seizure (myoclonic), and progressive worsening of neurological function, leading to mental retardation.

Although the disease does involve calcium on the brain, this fact is of no importance, in itself, as a predictor of its outcome in an individual. The disease causes diffuse changes to occur in the brain, which indicate that all levels of brain structures have been poorly formed, and this accounts for mental retardation in children with the disease.

There are other associated findings in the rest of the body which indicate the diffuse aspect of the disease. We do not know the cause of the disease, and unfortunately there is no cure. The only effective treatment for it is seizure control with medications. Seventy-five percent of the patients with the disease do not live until the age of 20 due to the neurological complications or tumors.

If the parents are not affected by the disease and have one child with it, the risk of those parents having another child with the disease is extremely small. — Dr. Hector James, associate professor of surgery, division of neurosurgery, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

TEEN LEADERS ADDRESS SCHOOL PROBLEMS

NORTHBROOK, ILL. — The nation's top high school students rate their education as good to excellent, but cite teacher incompetency as one of the going problems in their schools.

These are among the findings in the 12th Annual Survey of High Achievers conducted by "Who's Who Among American High School Students."

Nearly eight out of ten of those surveyed think their education has been good and 61% report they have access to academic programs to meet their needs. At the same time, 51% of the outstanding students feel teacher and administrator incompetency is among the foremost problems they see in school.

Better than half say teachers in their school are too easy academically and another 31% indicate they grade too high for the quality of work done by students.

Not surprisingly, lack of school funds topped the teen leaders' list of dilemmas faced by today's schools. When asked how they would adjust for school budget cuts, more than half suggested charging for summer school and 51% opted for cutting the number of administrators.

The "Who's Who" teens confirm reports that social problems do exist on today's campuses. When asked if they were aware of a variety of activities taking place in their schools, a majority responded in the affirmative. For example, 58% said they are aware of drug dealing on campus; 83% know about pregnancy among their peers; three-quarters report drug abuse and a good majority (84%) see alcohol abuse among students.

For the high achievers, the solution to these and other teen problems is parental involvement. A vast majority (92%) say parents should take a more active role in guiding children's behavior.

Despite their assessment of school troubles, the high achievers are forging ahead. Almost all (95%) are college bound and more than six out of ten have already factored a graduate degree into their future plans. As one teen put it, "You get out of school what you put into it."

WEST MADISON CITIZENS MEETING

The West Madison Concerned Citizens Against Crime will hold a meeting in the West Madison Recreation Center, 901 West Madison St., Madison at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The purpose of the meeting is to enlist neighborhood cooperation in helping stop crime, particularly burglaries in the area. Alderman Don Garrett and George Smith, a St. Louis educator and resident of Madison, are co-chairmen of the meeting. Madison Mayor Mike Sayk and Chief of Police Donald L. Bridick both are scheduled to appear. Citizens of West Madison also are being urged to attend the meeting by the chairmen and city officials.

State losing battle on prison space

By ROBERT ESTILL

WASHINGTON — Illinois and other states are "slowly losing the battle" to provide prison space for dangerous criminals, Gov. James Thompson told a Senate subcommittee late November.

Thompson said Illinois has added 3,500 prison beds to its adult prison system at a capital cost of $87 million and annual operating costs of more than $42 million since 1977 but is not keeping up with increasing crime and convictions, particularly for violent crimes.

"Having added 3,500 beds, we are not a single bed ahead," Thompson told the Senate Judiciary Committee.

He said the state's criminal law subcommittee.

Thompson said an additional 1,500 beds are in the construction or planning stage, but prison officials estimate they will still be 2,100 beds short in 1985 when the prison population is expected to reach 16,000 inmates.

Thompson said the Illinois situation is "particularly ominous" because of a federal court ruling that placing two inmates to a cell at the maximum security institution at Pontiac creates a "cruel and unusual punishment" under the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

If that ruling is upheld on appeal, it would displace 400 inmates at Pontiac, and 3,000 inmates throughout the entire Illinois prison system, he said.

"We cannot accommodate this with our present capacity, and we must regard it as a federal mandate because of its federal court origin," he said.

Thompson cited the Illinois situation as he argued in support of a bill which would create a Criminal Justice Facilities Administration in the Department of Justice. The new agency could make grants to states of $6.5 billion over a six year period starting Oct. 1, 1982, to acquire, build, modernize and equip prisons, jails, courthouses, police stations, sheriff's offices and other criminal justice facilities.

Thompson was co-chairman of President Reagan's Task Force on Violent Crime, which recommended providing $2 billion in federal funds over four years to help states build prisons. He said he supports the $6.5 billion proposal as well as the task force's more limited proposal.

The Reagan administration opposes both the $2 billion and the $6.5 billion proposals as being too costly and more properly the role of state and local governments.

"The federal government should accept the funding role only when its responsibility is clear and there is no other logical choice," Jeffrey Harris, a deputy associate attorney general, said in testimony submitted to the committee.

But Thompson, who usually backs the Reagan administration on budget matters, says the states need the federal help.

He said they have used such alternatives as work camps, work release programs, halfway-houses and early release programs to reduce the prison population but those measures have not kept pace with the need.

Unless something is done to provide more prison space, the other $3 recommendations of the task force "will be of no avail," Thompson said.

On another subject, Thompson told reporters his position on state aid to the Chicago Transit Authority and the Regional Transit Authority has not been changed by a state Supreme Court ruling that held unconstitutional a Chicago service tax, which would have enabled the city to divert more than $70 million in sales and cigarette taxes to the CTA.

"I am willing to consider state help but only when the CTA and RTA demonstrate they are capable of wisely spending state taxpayers' money," Thompson said.

"And at this point they have not demonstrated that."

He said he has not seen reform but only "punitive surcharges on suburban rail riders and continued patronage boondoggling at the CTA." As an example of the latter, he cited the recent hiring of a CTA press agent at a salary of $50,000 a year.

Monday's issue--a look back

Since last weekend was one to be remembered due to record-setting snow and ice, the Press-Record has chosen this space to take a final look back at "the storm of 1982."

For those who were stranded out of town and were not able to see a copy of Monday's issue, the photographs and main stories of Monday's paper are repeated on this page.

BURIED. Scenes like this one in Madison were common throughout the Quad-City area early this week as snowfall of approximately 17 inches buried cars and streets.

bringing the area to a standstill. Few stores were open today and motorists were being advised not to venture out onto the roads, unless absolutely necessary.

Snow closes schools, offices

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

A winter storm of the proportions that struck here during the weekend can have an unusual effect on law enforcement personnel and the people they serve, as local police were reminded Saturday night, Sunday and today.

Large snowflakes began to fall in the early evening Saturday and continued throughout the night. A few arrests and investigations were made during the early morning hours Sunday, but then a kind of calm settled on the entire community. Most families heeded broadcast advice to stay home during the snowfall of more than a foot in depth. Quad-City area public and parochial schools closed Monday due to the difficult driving and parking conditions. Also closed were Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Washington University, the University of Missouri at St. Louis and numerous other schools and colleges, plus a number of agencies, businesses and offices.

Only about a tenth of the scheduled 81-State buses operated Sunday, and it was decided to cancel all area metropolitan area bus routes Sunday. "If it stays here," remained the advice being given to the public. "The immensity of the storm became apparent early Sunday. Police patrol cars became mired in snow at 2:20 a.m. Sunday in the 2700 block of Sunset Drive and at 6:25 a.m. Sunday at 19th Street and Edison Avenue.

In addition to the deep snow, there were other weather oddities. Lightning and thunder occurred as the snow accumulated Saturday night, and there were patches of thick fog before dawn Monday, hampering motorists.

Several cars became stuck in snow in the 1800 block of Delmar Avenue and elsewhere as motorists sought to report for work today.

Among the plants and businesses closing today were Monsanto, Ralston-Purina, Maritz, Edison Brothers, the Ford-Mercury assembly plant in Hazelwood, and some divisions of McDonnell Douglas.

One consolation is that many will have a lot to tell their families and grandchildren when they look back in some future year and tell their recollections of the "that awful winter of '82." Already, it is becoming reminiscent of some of the severe winters of the late 1970s.

Sunday was a day to remember! Not since 1880 has the St. Louis metropolitan area experienced a snowfall of the magnitude which fell from the sky Saturday night. In the Quad-City area, the average snowfall reading was about 17 inches, but readings as deep as 23 inches were common in fields and snow drifted up several feet on highways.

Most Quad-Cityans will share stories of trying to unbury cars from snow drifts, mechanical failures due to ice and snow in engines and the problems attempting to maneuver in deep snow with glaze ice underneath it. The difficult situation here was compounded by heavy rain all day Saturday, which flooded many streets and fields. That was followed by colder temperatures and blizzard conditions. Lack of visibility compounded the problem for Saturday night drivers, rushing to get home before streets were closed.

Even interstate highways experienced problems as there were reports of tractor trailers hitting snow drifts and coming to a halt side by side, blocking all lanes of some interstates. Most highways and streets were littered with abandoned and stuck vehicles and the problem was compounded Sunday when drivers attempted to move other autos and added them to the scores of vehicles stuck in the streets.

By Sunday, the entire Quad-City area was nearly at a dead standstill. Tow trucks were kept busy just pulling emergency vehicles out of ditches and there was no help for individuals, other than their own shovel power.

The main streets of the Quad-City area seemed in better condition than in surrounding communities. Granite City Street Department crews, commanded by the new street superintendent, Mac Warfield, worked round the clock attempting to keep three plow trucks, two highlifts and a backhoe operating. Approximately 20 street department employees have worked from the time the snow hit until the present moment, spelling each other for times of rest and sleep.

Warfield, who did not officially become a street superintendent until today, by appointment of the mayor, said that when he saw the fate of snowfall Saturday night, he decided it was time he reported to duty to see if he could help.

"It was a big snow," Warfield stated. The street department already had its hands full when the snow hit. The heavy rains of Saturday had flooded many streets. West Pontoon Road was the worst, being covered with an estimated 24 feet of water. The street department barricaded both ends of the street, but, Warfield said, many people ignored the barricades and their cars stalled in the water. Sunday night, street department succeeded in removing the stalled cars and opening West Pontoon Road. Another major problem was clearing a path to the sewage treatment plant, where workers were unable to get in or out.

Monday, the situation was not much better. Most businesses closed and convenience stores reported that they were running out of milk and bread and may have to close. Many cars remained buried and those along major streets who were unable to free their cars Sunday found the problems compounded by snow plows which literally buried many cars, particularly along Madison Avenue.

The official reading on the snowstorm was 14 inches at Lambert-St. Louis international Airport, closing the runways to incoming and outgoing air traffic. That was the most snow since February, 1912, when 15½ inches was recorded, according to the weather service.

However, the average 17 inches here topped that record and statisticians have to go back to 1880 to find a 24-hour reading in excess of it. The official reading in 1880 was 20.4 inches.

Snow drifts in St. Louis were recorded as high as seven feet. Although details were sketchy, Collinsville residents able to report to work in Granite City this morning reported that Collinsville had more snow on the ground than Granite City. Unofficially, they measured the average snow in Collinsville at two feet. St. Louis news organizations reported tales of woe on their evening broadcasts. One story said 22 vehicles, including a Greyhound bus, were involved in a pileup on Interstate 70 near Lambert field.

Even snow plows were reported abandoned when they struck snow drifts too deep to handle.

In Granite City, the snow removal equipment fared better, but only because it was closer to the street garage, where it could be "thawed" from time to time. "We had some problems with the equipment from the slush, but we would bring in the frozen equipment and heat it up," Warfield said.

Snow plows became frozen until the plows could not be hoisted or lowered and the solid slush caused other problems which could be cured only with heat, he noted.

Abandoned cars in the streets were a major problem for street crews. On Madison Avenue at Nameoki Road, a car lodged in a drift in the turnoff lane onto Madison Avenue. That car was removed later this morning and the proper path was cleared, street workers said.

In Pontoon Beach, concern that ambulances would be unable to provide sufficient service led to approximately 13 Long Lake volunteer firefighters spending the night at the fire hall, manning three vehicles with four-wheel drive capability. Police were told that if emergencies existed, the firefighters would transport those in need of medical service to St. Elizabeth Medical Center. Fortunately, their help was not needed.

The Madison and Venice street departments said that stalled cars in the streets presented their major problem, since it was impossible to plow around many of the cars.

Madison Explorer Post 10-4 used a four-wheel drive vehicle Sunday to assist stranded motorists. Dispatched by the police, the Explorers aided 22 motorists in trouble during the day.

Sunday, only two of the 12 state police cruisers could be put into service, but officials reported that the district was nearly at full strength today.

As with any disaster, the job of rebuilding becomes the next priority. Canopies and flat porch roofs throughout the area collapsed under the heavy snow, including a large canopy in the 2100 block of Woodlawn Avenue and at a vacant used auto dealership on Madison Avenue.

Centralia fire disaster could it happen here?

By GARY SCHNEIDER
of the Press-Record

Centralia, Mo. — could it happen here?

While many housewives in Centralia were preparing lunch late Thursday morning, their stoves began to gurgle and sputter. Soon, the sound increased almost to the level of thunder, forcing many to flee their homes, which then burst into flames if the owners did not act quickly enough to turn off the gas to the home meters.

As many as 30 homes burst into flames almost simultaneously, causing an estimated 200 firefighters to be called from up to 50 miles away to try and contain the fires.

The cause, it was established, was a sudden increase in the pressure of the natural gas distribution system which caused pilot lights to turn into blowtorches and stove burners to become the centers of flaming infernos. Some witnesses said that when the gas pressure increased from approximately four ounces per square inch to as much as 40 pounds per square inch, flames from stove burners rose through kitchen ceilings.

Could it happen here? Local officials agree that such a widespread surge of high gas pressure is impossible in the majority of buildings here, but it is possible that an individual area or house could experience such a surge. With the exception of a few specific older areas, The Illinois Power gas distribution system here is the opposite of the system in Centralia, Mo., officials say. In Centralia, homes were supplied with low pressure gas and a main regulator served the entire town. There was no need, they thought, for each individual house to have a regulator.

In the Quad-City area, the majority of homes are served by high-pressure gas lines and the pressure is reduced by a regulator attached each home's gas meter.

Illinois Power has only a few areas in the Quad-City area which still are served by low-pressure gas lines and the buildings served do not have regulators. The company hopes in the near future to phase out those low-pressure areas and complete the high-pressure system in which each home is equipped with a regulator and safety valve, William Olsen of IP said.

Areas served by low-pressure systems, similar to Centralia's, include

Better system protects most local homes

portions of the downtown Granite City area on 19th Street from Adams Street to Grand Avenue; on Adams Street from 21st to 22nd Street; on 21st Street from Adams Street to Niedringhaus Avenue; on Cleveland Boulevard from 19th to 20th Street; and the alley between Grand and Madison Avenues from 19th to 20th Street, and a long stretch of 14th Street between McCambridge Avenue and Edwardsville Road.

Low pressure areas in Madison include Seventh Street between Madison and McCambridge avenues; on Iowa Street from Seventh to 12th Streets (three blocks); and on Washington Avenue along the same three blocks.

Officials of Illinois Power agree that these areas are protected only by single company-operated regulators and safety valves with no backup systems. In the unlikely circumstances of one of these regulators malfunctioned and the safety valve failed to blow, sections of Madison or Granite City could experience gas pressure surges similar to Centralia, Mo., and multiple fires could result.

However, Illinois Power officials contend that the chances of malfunctions in both the regulators and the safety valves are almost beyond the realm of possibility. The system has been extremely safe nationwide and deemed almost fail-safe, until Thursday.

The National Transportation Safety Board will investigate the accident at Centralia and will issue a complete report, which will be distributed to all gas companies. "If anything comes from their report, we will take additional measures to protect against it happening here," Olsen said.

Here, in the high pressure areas, a malfunction in an individual home regulator is possible, but not likely, according to Granite City Fire Chief Don Parente. "We haven't had any fires caused by faulty regulators to my knowledge, in the last eight or nine years," he said. Thinking farther back, he said he does not ever recall a fire here blamed on failure of the regulator to vent to the outdoors, rather than to allow the full pressure into the house. The home regulator is "a very reliable piece of equipment," according to Earl Affolter, gas distribution superintendent. For the few dollars each regulator costs, it provides invaluable protection of the home from surges, such as that experienced in Centralia, Mo.

He said that only about one or two times a year do Illinois Power Co. crews have to replace a home regulator, and that is almost always because it is leaking into the atmosphere. It is designed to leak, rather than allowing the pressure in the home to exceed 6½ inches of pressure per square inch, Affolter said, the same as the average home in Centralia received.

In comparison to the four ounces of pressure per square inch which enters majority of Quad-City houses, gas is received by Illinois Power from gas pipelines which vary from 200 to 400 pounds per square inch at the intake of the local distribution system.

Annually, each of the company-owner regulator has its safety valve tested by using gas lines to increase the pressure to the regulator and being sure that the relief valves blow. "They are very reliable," Affolter contended. By the time the gas has gone through the two regulators at each entry point in the system, it goes into the distribution system at about 35 pounds of pressure per square inch. That is the pressure received by most homes.

Each home in a high pressure area actually is protected by two additional regulators with safety mechanisms, the officials said. The first, attached to the home meter, is designed to begin leaking into the outside air if the pressure going into the home reaches or exceeds about 10 inches of pressure per square inch.

The second, on every furnace, reduces the pressure to 3½ inches per square inch, which is the standard pressure furnaces require. Excess Could it happen here? That is a question the National Transportation Safety Board may answer when it completes its investigation of Centralia's tragedy.

NATURAL GAS. A necessity for survival to many, also can be a deadly commodity, as the sign at the bottom left warns. Shown are some of the symbols of the gas distribution network, in-

Young Careerist deadline nearing

Details on the "Young Careerist" program, a project of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, were reviewed by Barbara Young, chairman, at the local BPW club's dinner meeting last week.

Forty members met at the Old China Restaurant, with Ollie Derr, president, conducting the business session. Mrs. Young explained that all employed women between the ages of 21 and 30, who have been in the working field for a minimum of one year, are eligible to participate in the "Young Careerist" scholarship program.

Candidates must submit a resume and a photograph, a letter from her employer and a prepared five-minute speech on the topic, "Women of Today: Global Perspectives."

Deadline for entries is Feb. 12. Mrs. Young said. Those interested may call 931-2626 after 5 p.m. or 931-5500 before 5 p.m. for further information.

The dinner chairman also reported the success of a recent career awareness program for high school youth. The BPW sponsored the program with the support of the Granite City Rotary Club and businessmen in the Quad-City area.

During the three-day project, a total of 150 high school students was provided an opportunity to gain a realistic view of various career fields in which they were interested by spending "one hour on the job" at different firms.

Celestia Puryear, chairman of the Individual Development Program, announced Barbara Young, winner at the local club level, will compete Feb. 28 for IDP district honors. Janet Parrett, a supervisor at the Geriatric Center in St. Louis, was inducted as a new member by Pearl Kennerly, membership chairman.

Members approved a revised budget, presented by Rose Ezell, vice president, and the appointment of Rosalie Stern, Mrs. Kennerly and Mrs. Puryear to a nominating committee was announced. An election of officers will take place at the club's March meeting.

Two scholarships will be awarded at the group's Feb. 17 dinner meeting at Charlie's Restaurant, Mrs. Derr said. One grant will be made to a club member and the second to a non-member who are working in the health field.

The designation of health as this year's field of endeavor for a scholarship grant was selected by club trustees, Helene Blischoff, Pauline Weir and Mrs. Kennerly, to meet the 1981-82 National BPW Federation goals—Global Perspectives: Energy, Economics and Health.

The February meeting will be hosted by the Foundation Committee under the direction of Sharon Beckett, chairman.

The program also will include the traditional candlelighting ceremony observing International Business Women's Week, conducted by Mrs. Blischoff. Mrs. Derr said all working women in the Quad-Cities are invited to attend the dinner. Those interested in joining the business women's club may call 931-2626 for details.

Quality of work life in 1980s

(Eleventh in a series of 15 articles exploring "working: Changes and Choices." In this article, management expert J. Richard Hackman of Yale University and Edward E. Lawler III of the University of Southern California argue that workers' productivity might be improved by increasing workers' involvement in their organizations. Copyright (c) 1981 by the Regents of the University of California.)

Workers' productivity has been a subject of increasing national concern in recent years.

This concern was heightened by the decline in 1980 of the output of goods and services, and by stagnant national productivity figures.

If the United States is to compete successfully in the world market, American workers must become more productive in their work.

A decade ago, the United States was surpassed by Germany as the world's leading exporter of manufactured goods.

Coinciding with reports of widespread alienation and dissatisfaction among workers in America — and with stories about highly motivated and productive workers in Japan and Sweden — this relative decline in world trade touched off a heated debate about the quality of work life in the U.S.

On one hand, some observers argued that the quality of life at work in America was in a sorry state and rapidly getting worse.

Organizations, they said, should do whatever they could to create a more meaningful and more satisfying work experience.

Jobs should be made safer and cleaner and should provide employees with more dignity and greater opportunities for involvement and personal growth, they said.

On the other hand were commentators who were frankly skeptical about the need for such changes. They pointed out that over 80 percent of the U.S. workforce reported that they were basically satisfied with their jobs, and that there were few signs of a decline in that figure.

The best way to improve productivity, they argued, would be to give workers enough job security that they would be willing to accept the introduction of automation needed to meet foreign competition.

In the 1980s, we may have moved beyond this controversy. There is now widespread agreement that ways to improve both the quality of employee work life and corporate productivity must be found if we are to have the kind of humane and efficient society that most of us want.

There also seems indisputable that there are many people who are underchallenged and underutilized by their work, who are neither giving as much to their work nor getting as much from it as they could.

There also is increasing dismay with how U.S. businesses are faring in the international market for goods and services, and with the quality of the products and services that are generated by both public and private organizations in this country.

HIGH INVOLVEMENT. How might organizations be changed to improve the effectiveness, and simultaneously to provide workers with more meaningful and more challenging jobs?

One promising idea that has been tried for over a decade in a number of U.S. and European workplaces is creating what we will call "high involvement" organizations.

This approach assumes that people have the right to be involved in company decisions that affect them; that people will prosper when they are involved in their work and their organizations; and that organizational effectiveness will improve when people contribute ideas as well as effort to the organizations in which they are working.

The "high involvement" approach would seem to fit well with the rising level of education of the workforce in our society and with the greater interest employees have these days in participation and self-development at work.

Jobs in many organizations demand more talent and more self-management from employees than ever before, and there are increasing numbers of U.S. workers who are both able and eager to meet those challenges.

SELF-MANAGEMENT, TEAMS, AND PROFITS. High-involvement work organizations can take many forms, but most of them have the following features:

1. Challenging work that requires considerable employee self-management.

In the past, jobs—and the procedures to be used in performing them—were specified as completely as possible by management.

Employees were trained to do the work in exactly the "right" way, and plenty of supervisors were on hand to make sure that they did.

There was little room for decision-making, initiative, or judgment by jobholders. Consequently, employees often felt little responsibility for how the work turned out.

In high-involvement work organizations, jobs are designed to provide a great deal of "room" for judgment and decision-making, to stretch and exercise employee knowledge and expertise, and to provide immediate, first-hand data about how well the work has been done.

Supervisors and managers serve as advisors and helpers, rather than as directive task-masters.

2. The use of teams, rather than individuals, to accomplish work.

Traditionally, work has been designed to be done by individual employees who operate more or less on their own, under the watchful eye of a supervisor.

Today, many organizations are experimenting with the use of small, self-managing teams of employees to do work.

In one organization, for example, groups of workers have responsibility for the entire assembly of large, complex farm machinery called grain driers—as well as for devising better ways of making these machines, and even for keeping in touch with farmers about how the driers are operating and how they might be improved.

Self-managing work groups such as this can provide the chance for team members both to work together on a task they care about and to produce more effective machines more efficiently.

3. Participative profit-sharing plans.

In traditional organizations, rank-and-file employees usually are paid by the hour, sometimes with extra financial incentives based on the amount of work they produce.

Employees in high-involvement work organizations are more likely to be on salary (like managers), or to have their pay rate based on the number of work skills they have mastered.

Departmental or organization-wide bonuses often are offered, based on overall operating results.

Dana Corporation, for example, has installed bonus plans that reward all employees based on plant productivity.

When productivity improves in such organizations, the employees get two kinds of rewards: personal satisfaction from contributing to something they have come to care about, and financial rewards when their efforts have helped the organization become more effective and profitable.

INTRODUCING HIGH INVOLVEMENT. Specific features of high-involvement work organizations vary from industry to industry and from firm to firm. There is no single model that can be "planted" in a given organization and guaranteed to produce positive results.

Experience has shown, however, that it is much easier to create a high-involvement work organization when a new plant is built than it is to convert a traditional plant.

Since a new organization is created, jobs can be structured for high challenge and self-management from the beginning, employees can be recruited who are interested in assuming substantial responsibility for their work, and organizational practices (such as bonus plans and quality control systems) can be structured to encourage and reinforce high employee involvement.

TRW, Procter and Gamble, and Cummins Engine are among the many companies that have successfully created new high-involvement plants.

Although it is more difficult for existing traditional firms to improve productivity and the quality of work life using high-involvement ideas, there are numerous cases in which significant progress has been made.

Sometimes, as in the case of the General Motors plant in Tarrytown, N.Y., these activities have been guided by a joint labor-management committee that is charged with developing ideas for improvements and seeing that they are carefully considered and implemented if practical.

Other times, an outside consulting firm or a single manager is primarily responsible for moving the organization toward heightened employee involvement and self-management.

The experimentation that is taking place with alternative ways of designing and managing work in this country reveals growing recognition that America will have to rely more on the effective use of human resources in making organization productive, as the supply of natural resources becomes increasingly scarce.

As yet, however, the development of ideas for creating high-involvement work organizations has been moving fairly slowly.

In our view, the pace of change will have to be accelerated if, in the years to come, our society is to be able to compete effectively in world market.

Six here among honor inductees

One hundred seniors and graduate students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, representing the traditional disciplines, have been inducted into the chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, according to Michael Quinn, associate professor in the Center for Urban and Environmental Research and Services and president-elect of the honor society chapter.

Scholarship students, the students represent the top 10 percent of their schools. They were initiated into the honor society in special ceremonies on Jan. 26.

Earl Lazerson, president of the University, addressed the students, congratulating them for their accomplishments and thanking them for helping build a tradition of academic excellence at the university. A reception followed the ceremony.

Phi Kappa Phi recognizes and encourages superior scholarship, bringing together the best scholars in all disciplines, in the belief that such encouragement stimulates others to excel, Quinn said.

Students participating in the ceremonies from Granite City were Andrew T. Barling, humanities; Lori G. Buener, education; Norma V. Evans, social science; Joan L. Fabisher, business; Francine J. Littelman, business and John J. Longos, business.

ownership or investor ownership.

About today's authors: J. Richard Hackman is professor of organization and management and of psychology at Yale University, where he joined the faculty in 1966.

A social psychologist, he has been a frequent consultant on quality-of-work-life issues. His books include "Behavior in Organizations" and "Work Redesign."

Edward E. Lawler III is professor of organizational behavior and founder and director of the Center for Effective Organizations at the University of Southern California.

He is also professor of psychology and program director in the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan, and visiting scientist in the Human Affairs Research Center at the Battelle Memorial Institute.

He is author or co-author of more than 100 articles and 10 books, including "Managing Organizational Behavior" and "Pay and Organization Development."

2 GC students on EUO Dean's List

The names of 700 Eastern Illinois University students are on the Dean's Lists for the fall semester. The Dean's Lists replace the honors and high honors rolls previously used to recognize academic achievement.

These lists were determined by grade point average (3.50-3.74 for honors and 3.75 and 4.0 for high honors). Under the new system, the top 10 percent of students in schools or colleges are included on the Dean's Lists. There also is a category of undeclared majors and the Board of Governors' Bachelor of Arts degree program with the same rule applying.

Among those on the fall honor list are Charlene Bennington, 3144 Wayne Ave., and Diane Elaine Blason, 2125 St. Clair Ave.

Funding for upgrading state fair buildings

Governor James R. Thompson announced Thursday that funding for a major improvement project at the Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield has been approved.

Two years ago, the transfer of State Fair Agency functions to the Department of Agriculture carried this administration's resolve to upgrade and make better use of fairground facilities," Thompson said. "As a significant part of that commitment, this project will not only add to the excellence of future state fairs, but also will accommodate various agricultural activities throughout the year."

The release of $473,700 in Capital Development Bond (CDB) funds provides for the conversion of Building 13 from a horse barn to an all-weather livestock show and sales facility.

The project involves complete rehabilitation of the building, constructed in 1910, that contains 32,000 square feet and is located next to the Coliseum. About 9,700 square feet of roofing system will be replaced. Other exterior renovations involve soffits, gutters, fascia and monitor windows. Lower level windows will be rehabilitated, painted and aluminum storm windows will be installed. Four sets of double doors will be replaced as well.

Among interior improvements on the building are the painting of roof trusses and installations including new light fixtures and wiring in the show arena, exit and emergency lighting, radiant unit heaters, exhaust fans and a fire alarm system with a tie to the firehouse.

The governor's funding approval enables the CDB to implement the completion of design documents by the project architect, Maslowski-Litvan Architects and Planners, Inc., Springfield. CDB anticipates that bidding for construction contracts can be held in April and work can begin in May or June. The project is expected to take about four months to complete.

Department of Agriculture Director Larry R. Werries said the construction schedule will include suspending work temporarily so the facility can be used during the 1982 State Fair to be held August 5 to 15.

Fund-raiser for Briggs

The Committee of Friends of Harold E. "Gene" Briggs is sponsoring a Valentine Dance, Friday, Feb. 12, at Belltine Center, Keebler and Belltine 40, Collinsville, at 9 p.m. Music will be provided by the Bill Berutti Band.

Briggs is a candidate for re-election to the office of regional superintendent of schools in Madison County on the Democratic ticket. He has served as regional superintendent for the past eight years, being elected to the office in November, 1974, and November, 1978, and appointed to complete the unfinished term of Wilbur R. L. Trimpe in 1973. Briggs was serving as assistant superintendent in the regional office at the time of his appointment. Prior to his work in the regional office, he served 15 years as teacher and principal in the Granite City schools.

He has served as president of the Marquette Division of Illinois Education Association and the Gateway East Field Chapter Phi Delta Kappa, chairman of the Madison County Curriculum Council for six years, and is a life member of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Tickets will be available at the door. Further ticket information is available by calling 344-5353.

QUICK QUIZ

Are you a whiz when it comes to driving safely in bad weather? This quiz can help you see if you can learn a few more pointers.

1. The most important factor when overtaking another car under poor road conditions is (a) Leaving ample margins to all sides, (b) Having enough gas (c) Having a clear view of the road?

2. The safest places to drive on a snow-covered road are (a) Deep snow areas (b) The tracks of other cars (c) Sides of the road?

3. If the rear wheels of a front-wheel-drive car should accidentally skid, the best way of getting the car under control is (a) Steer in the same direction as the rear wheels are skidding (b) De-clutch the car and take your foot off the accelerator pedal (c) Both of the above?

ANSWERS: 1. (a) 2. (b) 3. (c) Dense traffic on a snow-covered road creates tracks that may be several inches deep. Problems will only arise when you leave these tracks and venture into the deep snow to overtake, for instance. 3. (c).

Simon urges lower postal rates for newspapers to keep citizens informed

By U.S. Rep. PAUL SIMON

One of the places the federal government is "saving" money is by not subsidizing the postal system as much as it formerly did.

Another time and place is more appropriate to discuss the choice which was created several years ago in the name of having a "modern" system.

But regardless of organization, Congress and the public must face this reality: To provide the kind of service our society wants and needs, the postal system always has had to have a subsidy, and probably always will have to have a subsidy.

It sounds great to make speeches about putting the nation's post offices "on a paying basis" as orators of both parties have done, but don't take the speeches too seriously.

The increase to 20 cents of the first-class stamp is the most obvious increase of postage rates.

All non-profit organizations such as churches and the March of Dimes have had their mail rates nearly doubled at the very time they are being told they must pick up much of the slack, helping the poor and elderly and others who will be hurt most in the federal budget cutbacks.

And there is another, still more ominous side to these postage increases: We're making it more difficult for opinion journals of every political and religious persuasion to survive.

The postage bill for the Christian Century has doubled from $60,000 in 1981 to an estimated $120,000 this year.

The United Methodist Reporter's has jumped 154 percent.

The American Legion Magazine now faces a postage tab that is 75 percent, or $1 million, higher than last year.

Newspapers, which often must reach their subscribers by mail, are being forced to increase subscription rates and rural subscribers to weekly and daily newspapers are dropping subscriptions, relying more and more on television and radio for the news.

Sen. Alan Dixon has been counseling with Illinois newspapers to learn how they are coping with this recent financial jolt, and he confirms that, in many cases, the situation is indeed serious.

Radio and television bring an important dimension to news reporting and can tie the nation instantly together during important moments in our national life.

They can bring us the news more quickly and often more vividly, but they cannot provide the in-depth coverage of news and opinion that a newspaper of magazine can.

We need both arms of the media and the balance they provide each other.

Our form of government is founded on the premise that our citizens will be exposed to a wide variety of ideas and views so they can pick and choose among them for our general public good.

But, if we adopt policies that discourage the free flow of ideas, then we have forgotten something elemental to our system.

This year we will spend $1.3 billion on tanks. There is a question about how appropriate tanks may be in modern warfare, some believing they are as about as effective against a sophisticated opponent as the cavalry.

But most of us have resolved our doubts in favor of voting money for tanks, for the security of the nation. But if it makes sense in the national interest to spend $1.3 billion on tanks, then shouldn't we be willing to spend a fraction of that amount to encourage a well-informed citizenry?

Shouldn't we be willing to spend a fraction of that amount on what we know is in the best interest of our country, encouraging the free flow of ideas?

In my lifetime I have seen first-class postage go from 3 cents to 20 cents, and I don't like that a bit.

But, that is nowhere near as serious to the future of the nation as the increase we've forced on newspapers, magazines and books.

We've lost a little of our sense of perspective.

Future Homemakers Week starts Sunday

"Join Us and Grow With Us" is the theme for National FHA-HERO Week, celebrated by Future Homemakers of America as part of Vocational Education Week, Feb. 7-13. The purpose of the week is to show how vocational education and Future Homemakers of America — part of home economics education — prepare students for the future.

In a nationwide celebration, 12,500 chapters and 395,000 young men and women will focus on the leadership and decision-making skills they have developed through projects related to family life concerns, community involvement and personal growth.

FHA-HERO members, students in home economics classes through grade 12, are expanding the image of the homemaker by working on local and national projects focusing on child-care services, clothing and textiles, foods and nutrition, family life education, home management and career preparation.

Healthy Babies: Chance or Choice?, a nationwide peer education project in its sixth year, is one way FHA-HERO members have reached more than three million other teens. Student peer educators teach students how to make responsible decisions concerning teenage pregnancy.

Future Homemakers of America is a national vocational student organization with two kinds of chapters, FHA and HERO. FHA chapters emphasize consumer education, homemaking and family life education combined with exploration of jobs and careers. HERO (Home Economics Related Occupations) chapters emphasize preparation for jobs and careers.

Founded in 1945 and located in Washington, D.C., Future Homemakers of America is currently undertaking a $2 million fund-raising campaign to build its own national headquarters and leadership center. The move to Reston, Va., 16 miles from the nation's capital, is planned for next summer.

To burn mortgage at Niedringhaus church

Plans are being made by Niedringhaus United Methodist Church for a mortgage burning celebration in May.

The church, which has been located at 20th Street and Delmar Avenue since 1902, has progressed through several building changes over the decades.

The latest growth project was the present sanctuary which was dedicated Oct. 29, 1973.

Waldo Frohardt, whose family has been associated with the church for almost 75 years, is serving as chairman of the mortgage burning event.

Sunday, May 23, has been set for the celebration, but announced this week.

Other church members involved in planning the day's activities include Charles Reimers, Harold Lynn, Betty Mathis, Kathy Schaeffer, Pearl Campbell, Becky Slate and the Rev. Louis Frick, pastor.

HONOR FOUR UNDERWITERS

Bill Terrell, owner of the Bill H. Terrell Agency, and associates Kenneth C. Carrio, Richard G. Essington and Gordon A. Hill of the Franklin Life Insurance Company of Springfield, Illinois, have been named to membership in the 1982 Franklin Million Dollar Conference, the company's elite organization of million-dollar-a-year sales and sales management leaders.

Conference honors will be presented personally by Franklin President William J. Alley, March 14 at The Canyon Hotel, Palm Springs, Calif.

IN LOVING memory of my son BRIAN TOWNZEN who departed from this life Feb. 5, 1981. It's been one year since you went away, apart of me went with you on that day. I've thought about you every day since, and my heart is broken. I don't think it will mend. I know not many things, you tried to do went right for you while you were on this earth, but I know that you are at peace and resting now until Jesus shall bring you back to life. You will always be in my memory buckskin cowboy. — Sadly missed by Mom. 32 2 4

Public Notices 33

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION
TO: MARCELLA HOOPER, MOTHER OF TERRY HALL, A MINOR 82-J-60 ADDRESS UNKNOWN and to All Whom It May Concern.

Take notice that on the 27 day of January, 1982 a petition was filed under the Juvenile Court Act by Asst. States Atty. John M. Delaney Jr. in the Circuit Court of Madison County, Illinois, in the interest of TERRY HALL, a minor, and that in Circuit courtroom at Edwardsville on the 19 day of February, 1982 at the hour of 10:00 A.M., or as soon thereafter as this cause may be heard, an adjudicatory hearing will be held upon the petition to have the child declared to be a ward of the court under that Act. The court has authorized its clerk to proceed to take from you the custody and guardianship of the minor, and now, unless you appear at the hearing and show cause against the petition, the petition may be taken for granted as against you and each of you, and an order, judgment or decree entered.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF THE VILLAGE OF PONTON BEACH, MADISON COUNTY, ILLINOIS

On July 16, 1980, the Federal Emergency Management Agency identified Special Flood Hazard Areas in the Village of Ponton Beach, Illinois, through issuance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM).

The Associate Director, Federal Emergency Management Agency, has determined that it is appropriate to modify the elevations and zone designations of the flood having a one-percent chance of occurrence in any given year (base flood) for certain locations in the Village of Ponton Beach, Illinois. The modified elevations and zone designations are shown on the Flood Insurance Rate Map which was in effect prior to this determination. A revised Rate Map will be published as soon as possible.

The changes are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Federal Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 as amended, (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, P.L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 1901-1122, and 44 C.F.R. Part 65.

Under the above mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Associate Director for the community to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), the community will be using the new elevations and zone designations to administer the flood plain management measures of the NFIP. These modified elevations and zone designations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for property owners and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

Upon the second publication of notice of these changes in this paper, any person has ninety days to request a hearing to be held through the Chief Executive Officer of the community that the Federal Emergency Management Agency will reconsider the determination. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific or technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the ninety-day period elapses, the Associate Director's determination to modify base flood elevation and zone designations may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify: Mr. Paul Bennett, President, Village Board of Ponton Beach, 3910 Highway 111, Granite City, Illinois 62040

Also, at this location is the map showing the new elevations and zone designations. A copy of the one that will be printed. The numerous changes made in the elevations and zone designations on the Village of Ponton Beach's FIRM make it administratively infeasible to publish in this notice all of the elevation and zone designation changes contained on the Village of Ponton Beach's map.

Your Social Security

SSI program not to blame

Q. Can you tell me just how much money was in the Social Security Trust Funds on Jan. 1, 1974, before several welfare programs were dumped into Social Security which quickly depleted the funds.

— M.K.

A. There was approximately $50 billion in the four Social Security Trust Funds at the beginning of 1974.

In January 1974 some welfare programs namely Aid to the Aged, Aid to the Blind, and Aid to the Totally Disabled were federalized under the title of Supplemental Security Income (SSI). For the most part, SSI has been administered by Social Security but the money for SSI payments and the cost of administering the program is paid from general tax revenues and not from the Social Security Trust Funds.

Social Security's financial problems are due to factors which have nothing to do with the SSI program.

Q. I have been eligible for my State Teachers Retirement Pension since age 55. I am now 62. Do I plan to retire until age 65 or later contingent on whether I will be rehired?

Will I still be eligible for one-half of my spouse's Social Security regardless of when I choose to officially retire?

Previously I thought I must retire before November 1982. — H.F.

A. You assuming you are a female. In that case you will be eligible to receive benefits from your spouse's account.

Senior citizens keeping fit

For four years, an exercise program has been blossoming at the Tri-Cities Area YMCA. What started as a small program funded by a government grant has grown to include a second location and swimming exercises. The grant has since expired and the program now is funded by the "Y." Ellen Wilson has been the instructor of the exercise classes since the beginning and Nancy Halvachs is the swimming exercise instructor.

Emulating the triangle of the "Y," with three sides representing the spirit, mind and body, the classes are for more than just improving coordination, balance, flexibility and other physical improvements. The classes are sharing, caring and a lot of hugging and laughing.

In the photo at the left — Eulah Reis, left, and Bertha Frith do a shoulder joint exercise, which helps both with flexibility. The partners then switch positions and continue the arm-rotating exercise. Above — Members of the Anchorage Homes class do a group exercise designed for the back and neck. Class members also must learn to trust the others in some of the group exercises. From left, clockwise, are Eulah Reis, Carrie Durell, Jo Wilkins, instructor Ellen Wilson, Woodie Lynn and Bertha Frith (back to camera). The exercises used are based on Yoga which the class members enjoy because of the slow, more natural feeling. Classes also are conducted weekly at the "Y," as is the swimming exercise program.

Appointment cards for SIUE registration now available

Appointment cards for spring quarter registration at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are now available for distribution.

Students planning to attend classes at the university during spring quarter may pick up appointment cards at the Enrollment Office, Room 1308 of the Rendleman Building.

To obtain appointment cards, students must have in their possession their most recent fee receipt card (No. 3 card). Spring quarter registration will begin March 2.

Members of the community interested in taking classes at the university during the spring months should make application for admission immediately, if they have not already done so.

Admission applications for undergraduate study may be obtained in the Office of Admissions and Records, Room 1207 of the Rendleman Building.

New students must be admitted to the university prior to registering, according to Eugene Magac, director of admissions and records. Information concerning admissions may be obtained by contacting the Office of Admissions and Records at 1-492-2720 and the Graduate Admissions Office at 1-492-3160.

SCOTT SUVERKRUP

Earns Maroon Bar

Color photography had a starry start

In the early 1900s, French inventor Louis Lumiere discovered the first practical color-photography process. He dyed tiny potato-starch granules in three primary colors, covered a glass plate with dyed starch and carbon dust, and coated the whole business with potato emulsion.

The processed plates, called Autochromes, became quite popular. Lumiere's plant was producing about 6,000 9x12 inch plates daily by 1913, each covered with some 75 million starch grains.

More than 60 metric tons of silver a year go into the mouths of Americans in the form of dental work.

Cadet Corporal Scott Suverkrup, son of Mrs. Carol Swiatek of Granite City, has been awarded the Maroon Bar at Missouri Military Academy for his outstanding disciplinary record during the past month. Cadet Suverkrup is in his junior year at the academy.

Missouri Military Academy founded in 1889, is a private college-preparatory school with an international enrollment of cadets in grades 4 through 12.

Snow emergency brings volunteers

By MICK STRANGE

Citizens, businessmen, city employees and Explorers in the city of Madison were praised by Mayor Mike Sasysk and the aldermen at the Tuesday night Madison City Council meeting.

Assisting in what was referred to as the meetings as a "crisis situation," volunteering equipment and manpower were: J. C. Hauling Co., Waggoner Trucking and C.D. Peters Construction, all donating trucks and manpower; Fox Brothers Industries, which donated the use of a highlift; Ed Ray Dabish and Jerry Wilman, each donating the use of four-wheel drive vehicles for emergency use; Andy Economy, Danny and D. E. "Butch" Siges of Lee and Andy's Towing, working with volunteer wreckers helping motorists, and Erwin Mueller, a nearby farmer who donated a tractor.

In case of a fire or ambulance emergency, 12 volunteer firemen and ambulance attendants stayed at the fire department.

Tribute also was paid to members of Explorer Post 10-4, sponsored by Madison Police Unit 110, for the Explorers' assistance to stranded motorists and persons needing food.

Detective Sgt. Paul Bargiel, Recreation Director Sam Dymas and Terry Sasysk, all of whom have had experience driving heavy equipment, worked throughout the night, along with the street department employees, trying to keep the main streets and Third, Sixth and 12th streets open between Madison and McCambridge avenues.

Fifth Ward Alderman Donald Garrett noted that Police Dispatcher Phyllis L. Moore did a "fantastic" job getting a rescue helicopter for the people here in Madison. This snow is presenting a real crisis.

"We could not do or afford to hire done what has been accomplished without the dedication of the street department workers, fire and policemen, plus the really great volunteer citizen help."

With more snow expected, I can only ask the people to be patient with us. The men are working around the clock to clear the streets," Sasysk stated.

"We will try solve everyone's problems, but we must set priorities and this must be the main streets so that emergency vehicles can get through. I again want to thank all these fine people and those I just have not had a chance to mention. I just can't remember every one. There have been so many helping solve this very real problem and I want to thank the citizens for being patient," Sasysk concluded.

A question was raised by Alderman Garrett about an East St. Louis group using the West Madison Recreation Center while local citizens allegedly were denied use of the building.

Mayor Sasysk said that he will call a meeting with the city recreation director and the two Fifth Ward aldermen and look into the matter. "I was not aware of this and I don't approve. That building should not be used by any group outside the city without the aldermen from that area approving it," Sasysk said.

Garrett then asked if the city was getting rent from the group for the building. City Comptroller A.C. Hudzik responded, "I am not aware of any (use by) an East St. Louis group. We do get fees for the use of the building from time to time."

An open meeting of the finance committee was held at 6:30 p.m. to discuss the insurance programs of the city, due to rising premiums. Several plans are under consideration. No action was taken and there will be further discussion and a recommendation made to the council at the next meeting, it was indicated.

Alderman Thomas Gordon was absent from the meeting and the only spectators attending were city officials and a representative of the Press-Record.

Conference expected to bring 500 bankers

A program on variable rate loans will be one of the highlights of the 34th annual Consumer Credit Conference in St. Louis next week, according to Jerry Thomas, consumer division president of the Illinois Bankers Association (IBA), sponsor of the conference.

The conference, slated for Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 10 and 11 at the Shagraton-St. Louis Hotel, expects to draw 500 to 600 Illinois bankers, according to Thomas, who also is an installment loan vice-president of American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

The variable rate loans session will probably be the most significant segment of our day and a half in St.

Louis," Thomas said. "Many banks are just starting to get acquainted with this departure from the fixed rate loan. Variable rates are more expensive, not only for the consumers, but for bankers as well. I don't see bankers jumping up and down with glee over the prospect of offering variable rate loans, but they are the wave of the future," he emphasized.

Other topics on the agenda are updates on truth in lending and an address by congressman Guy Vander Jagt (R-Michigan) who achieved national prominence by delivering the keynote address at last year's Republican convention.

No decision yet on death row inmates

By RAY SERRATI

SPRINGFIELD — A final decision on the possible transfer of death row inmates into regular prison system has not been made.

"We still don't know if they will be integrated into the system," said Linda Savage, a Corrections Department spokeswoman.

Corrections Department officials have been discussing the possibility of moving the 37 men now being held on death row in Menard Correctional Center into the regular system. When the plan was first being discussed some prison officials felt that it might help the death row inmates. The plan has been under discussion but no definite action has been taken.

Presently there are 40 prison inmates under the death sentence. Illinois' death row was formerly at Stateville Correctional Center near Joliet but it was recently moved to Menard.

HOLLYWOOD HEADLINERS

By NANCY ANDERSON
 Robyn Douglass has been cast as Kenny Rogers' leading lady in his first theatrical feature, "Six Pack," a movie for 20th Century-Fox.

She'll play Lilah, a Shreveport, La., saloon owner, who helps six orphans win Rogers' heart.
 Robyn got the news that she'd gotten the part on Christmas Eve, so her Christmas was definitely merry.

A veteran of TV movies, Douglass has made two feature films, "Breaking Away," and the not-yet-released "Partners," with Ryan O'Neal and William Hurt.
 Daniel Petrie is directing "Six Pack" under the banner of Kenny's own company, "Lion's Share Productions."

"Though the picture is set all over the South, it will be shot entirely in and around Atlanta.
 After being offered feature films by every major studio, Rogers settled on "Six Pack," which has a stock car racing theme.

Ben Vereen, who holds an honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters from Emerson College, is playing a doctor in a "Love Boat" episode. But not one of Humane Letters.

He's in the series because of his friendship with Ted Lange who plays "Love Boat's" bartender. Sometimes barker, Vereen told Lange, "If I can ever do anything to help you out, just give me a call."

So when Ted got his first opportunity to direct an episode of the series, he phoned Ben and asked him to join the cast.
 Tony Randal, Van Johnson, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Robert Preston, elegantly dressed in black tie, have posed for the March Harper's Bazaar, kicking up their heels in union like a string of Rockettes. The photo plugs "Night of 100 Stars," a TV special to air in March in celebration of the 100th anniversary of The Actors' Fund of America.

While all the guys were well-labeled evening joggers, only three wore appropriate black socks for the picture session.
 Johnson, who has made red socks his trademark, wore his usual, even when posing for a high fashion magazine.

It's possible that he kicked more readily than the rest of the quartet, since he used to be a chorus boy.

Brette Davis, posing for a portrait, noticed a sign warning that smoking in that quarter was a violation of the law.

"How long would I get?" Davis asked the photographer.

"About 10 years," "Not bad," said Davis, lighting up.

When Bob Hope went to England in 1951 to do a benefit at the Prince of Wales Theater to aid a boys' club in a shoddy London neighborhood, the president of the club's drama class had the frightening honor of publicly thanking Hope from the theater stage.

The shaking 14-year-old who handled the chore was Michael Caine.

"I was one of the 200 newly performing delinquents who were being pushed around by the reverend," Caine says, making reference to the Rev.

DISTRICT 11 K-9 TEAM which began their duties this week are Trooper Richard Klekamp and "Fritz" a well trained German Shepherd. The new dogs are very friendly, but will attack on command. "Fritz" is also trained to detect drugs and nitrate used in explosives. The team are available to other police units on request through the local Illinois State Police District 11 headquarters in Maryville.

Cooperation and new techniques stressed

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

Cooperation among all police agencies — local, county, state and federal — is a major key in the curbing of crime, according to Capt. Laimutis A. Nargelenas, commander of Illinois State Police District 11 at Maryville. Capt. Nargelenas made his remarks to a meeting of Explorer Post 104 at the Madison Police Department.

"Cooperation is a real key in law enforcement. There is no room for petty jealousies in our business. Let's face it, there is enough crime for all of us. Law enforcement agencies on all levels need to pool our resources," Nargelenas said.

Renewed emphasis placed in several areas and new programs being instituted by ISP District 11 include: 55 mph speed limit, enforcement, driving under the influence (DUI) of either alcohol or drugs, new K-9 unit, truck enforcement, new accident reconstruction program and the management concept of PPR (Policing For Results).

Capt. Nargelenas said, "Orders have been issued to become very tough on speeders. The governor has said that 56 mph is speeding. I am personally in favor of the 55 mph limit, but because it will save fuel, but because it saves lives."

"The State Police had a canine unit from 1964 to 1969, but the dogs were very aggressive and were used primarily for crowd control and building search. With the old type training the dogs had, they, at times, had trouble telling the 'bad guys' from the good guys."

"About all they could really do was attack and kill. Our new dogs are multi-disciplined dogs and are friendly, but will attack on command," he explained.

"The new dogs are approachable and can be used for finding lost children, plus crowd control. They also are trained in finding drugs and nitrate, which is the principal ingredient for bombs."

Trooper Richard Klekamp will work with the German Shepherd named "Fritz" in District 11. The team will be made available to other law enforcement agencies requesting our assistance," Nargelenas said.

The new DUI (Driving Under the Influence) law, which now includes drugs and alcohol, makes prosecution and detection much easier, according to Capt. Nargelenas.

Probable cause to search a car after stopping it also has been made simpler. It was noted that at least 90 percent of all auto accidents involve drivers who have been drinking, according to statistics.

Troopers from District 11 made 46 DUI arrest in January of 1982, compared to about 15 or 16 during January, 1981.

Highway safety also is being stressed in the truck enforcement programs, he said. Troopers are checking for hazardous material violations, federal safety regulations and tractor-trailer thefts, in addition to transportation of stolen goods.

The truck enforcement program moves locations about every hour, due to word of their presence being broadcast by CB radios.

Commenting on prostitution enforcement, he noted, "The St. Louis city and county police have done such a good job in a prostitution crack-down they are forcing them (the prostitutes) to work on this side of the river."

"We have a special squad working on the prostitution problem at truck stops and we are getting excellent cooperation from the courts and from the truck stop owners. It is very hard to stop prostitution, but we can slow it down and force it out of our area," Nargelenas said.

Trooper James Hall has undergone intensive accident reconstruction training. His skills will enable him to reconstruct just what happened with great accuracy, even months after the accident occurs. This will enable better prosecution or clearance of cases of very serious nature.

Some people call it Management By Objectives (MBO) but Capt. Nargelenas refers to it as PPR "policing for results." Either way, it means getting the best possible job accomplished.

He said they target where, for example, the areas in District 11 that have a high accident rate.

Then with the cooperation of county authorities in the trouble areas, regardless of the type of police problem, will be saturated with law enforcement officers.

The ISP has the same problems facing law enforcement agencies throughout the county and that is enough money to operate on, causing layoffs in many departments and a hiring freeze.

District 11 has 85 officers and covers five counties, including Madison.

Capt. Nargelenas has a masters degree in legal studies and has nearly finished his doctorate. He was a teacher and a coach before making application to the ISP.

His father was a police officer in Lithuania and he has a brother who is a deputy sheriff in northern Illinois. His ISP assignments, in addition to regular patrol duty, included physical training officer and later director of the police academy in Springfield.

He attended the FBI Academy.

Some IRA options

By HELEN L. CALL

The new individual retirement accounts (IRAs) are now available.

For those looking around, here are some suggestions on where to put that money from William Donoghue in Maine, the country's dean of money fund monitors.

There are a number of options, says Donoghue. — Banks and thrift institutions offer an 18-month certificate at fixed or variable rates.

— Brokerage firms can set you up in stocks, bonds and money market funds.

— No-load mutual fund families offer money funds, bond and stock funds and between them as market conditions change.

— Insurance companies offer annuities and money market funds.

"We advise you to start your IRA with a money fund that is part of a no-load mutual fund family," says Donoghue. "This way you'll earn high yields right away and have the freedom to switch into a bond or equity fund if the market favors these investments down the road."

The new tax act has changed the rules of the game in tax shelters. After reviewing the major provisions of the act, Investment Search says the changes are generally positive and oil and gas programs will be even more attractive.

"It's back to basic investment economics with emphasis on program performance," says the advisory.

Stock brokerage companies are attracting a lot of interest as the majors are acquired by big money firms. It is not at an end, there are mergers yet to come, says Gil Haller at

Nargelenas, John Hartman and Anthony Evanoff. Capt. Nargelenas was involved with law enforcement Explorers when he was director of the ISP training academy in Springfield prior to assuming command of District 11.

Intruder causes water damage at two apartments

While staying temporarily with relatives Monday, Tammy Tipton reported receiving a threatening phone call from a former boyfriend, who also said he had "busted up" her apartment at 2904 Kirkpatrick Homes, she told police. Entry into the dwelling apparently was gained by breaking a window.

Extensive damage was noted in the apartment, where a wash basin had been ripped off the wall in the second floor bathroom and water was shooting to the ceiling, officials said. About three inches of water was covering the floor and plaster was falling from the ceiling. The mirror of a medicine cabinet was smashed and clothing items had been damaged by the water. Due to considerable water damage, it could not be immediately determined what was missing from the apartment.

At 3:33 p.m. Monday, Janet Womack, 2903 Kirkpatrick Homes, reported to police that water was coming from the walls and ceiling into her apartment, apparently from the adjacent apartment (2904).

Plaster was falling from the ceiling and about three inches of water was on the floor. Mrs. Womack was advised to stay overnight with neighbors.

Some water damage also was found in 2905 Kirkpatrick Homes.

Services for Louie Leggans

Services for Louie Leggans, 65, of Edwardsville, were held at 10 a.m. today at Bob Thomas Memorial Mortuary, 2205 Pontoon Road, with the Rev. W. L. Showers officiating. Burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery, Edwardsville Township.

Mr. Leggans died at 12:31 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 30, 1982, at Oliver C. Anderson Hospital, Maryville, where he was a patient 10 hours.

Prior to retiring in 1978, he was employed at Granite City Steel for 30 years as a millwright. He was a veteran of World War II.

Among the survivors are his wife, Mrs. Jane (Dyer) Leggans; a brother, Neuburn Leggans of DuQuoin; a sister, Maggie Harris of Anna, Ill.; and nieces and nephews.

Drugs taken from pharmacy

A box of assorted controlled drugs and a .38-caliber revolver were among the items taken in a burglary at Vaughn's Pharmacy, 1636 Delmar Ave., reported at 11:50 a.m. Monday.

The burglar first entered an access door leading to another part of the building and then forced the knob on an interior door to gain entry to the pharmacy.

Drawers and shelves had been searched. Several tools were found on an upstairs landing and a tire tool was recovered from the top of the drug counter.
